RYAN APPOINTED TO DIRECT ARMY'S ENTIRE AIR PLANS

Baker Gives Him Title of Second Assistant Secretary of War, with Full Powers.

NEW DUTIES FOR CROWELL

First Assistant Is Made Director of Munitions, Also with Full Control.

STETTINIUS STAYS ABROAD

Changes Approved by President Intended to Meet Senate Demand for Separate Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Swiftly upon the heels of the disclosures made in the Senate Military Committee's report upon the army aircraft investigation announcement was made today by Secretary of War Baker of the selection of John D. Ryan to act as Second Assistant Secretary of War, with full responsibility over the army's air service.

At the same time Benedict C. Crowell, First Assistant Secretary of War, is intrusted with the munitions program.

Although the official statement refers to Mr. Crowell as "Director of Munitions" and Mr. Ryan as "Director of Air Service," the changes virtually establish separate organizations, each under direct control of one man.

Mr. Ryan will act as Second Assistant Secretary of War in place of Edward R. Stettinius, who is now in France, and who will remain there indefinitely as special representative of the War Department with plenary powers. Mr. Ryan will not only have supervision, control, and direction of the Bureau of Aircraft Production, of which he himself has been the director, but also over the Bureau of Military Aeronautics, of which Major Gen. William L. Kenly is Chairman.

Secretary Baker made it plain that the changes announced were being instituted with the full concurrence of President Wilson. It is the President's answer to the recommendation of the Thomas report on the aircraft investigation for the creation of a Department of the Air to unify the nation's air activities, who would be a member of the Cabinet equal in rank and power to the Secretary of War.

Baker's Statement.

Here is the text of Secretary Baker's announcement:

With the concurrence of the President, I have today selected John D. Ryan to act as Second Assistant Secretary of War in the place of Edward R. Stettinius, who is now in France. Mr. Stettinius will continue the special representative of the War Department in France, with full power to carry out special missions with which he is charged, and will exercise as such special representative all the powers he has heretofore had.

John D. Ryan, as Second Assistant Secretary, is designated Director of Air Service and is charged with the responsibility of procuring and furnishing to the army in the field all material and personel required for the air service, and is given supervision, control, and direction over the Bureau of Aircraft Production and the Bureau of Military Aeronautics, with full power completely to coordinate their activities and to develop and carry out the air program. Mr. Ryan will select a new head for the Bureau of Aircraft Production.

Benedict C. Crowell, First Assistant Secretary of War, is specially intrusted with the responsibility for the munitions program, and as Director of Munitions is given the necessary power to see that the munitions required for our military operations are procured and furnished to the army in the field.

Mr. Keppel retains the duties heretofore assigned him.

The new relation assumed by Mr. Stettinius is in pursuance of a plan fully discussed with him before he went to Europe and with which he is in full accord.

Senators Disappointed.

Members of the Senate Military Committee were disappointed tonight, although not altogether surprised, when they learned of the decision of the Administration to go only as far at this time as to place the air activities of the army under the direction of one man instead of favoring the co-ordination of army and navy air activities under a single Cabinet head. In the absence of appropriate legislation, it was probably impossible for the Administration to have gone any further at this time, and bills are pending, which members of the Military Committee contemplate bringing forward, for the creation of

Bodies on the Jutland Coast Indicate German Sea Loss

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 27.—It is reported by the authorities in Jutland that during the last few days the bodies of 130 German marines have been washed ashore on the western coast of Jutland.

The authorities say that it has been substantiated that the marines were on German destroyers, which likely were lost in an engagement or by coming in contact with mines.

FORD NOMINATED, NEWBERRY ALSO

Early Michigan Returns Indicate Easy Victory for Each in Senatorial Primaries.

DIAL FAR AHEAD OF BLEASE

South Carolina Radical Opposed by Wilson Is Beaten for the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 27.—Early returns from today's primary election, straggling in because of late closing of the polls in the larger cities, indicate that Henry Ford has won the Democratic nomination for United States Senator by a wide margin over James W. Helme.

On these reports, directors of Truman H. Newberry's campaign claim that he has safely clinched the Republican nomination for Senator. Ford, whose name was on the Republican ticket also, runs second in some sections, while Chase S. Osborn, the third contestant, is trailing.

At midnight reports from 484 precincts out of 2,136 in the State outside of Detroit in the Republican primary, give Newberry, 21,036; Ford, 10,667, and Osborn, 8,886.

With few districts excepted, the primary vote is abnormally light. Old-time politicians have rubbed their eyes in amazement. Absence from the State of 175,000 men in war service has removed the enthusiasm usually found among the younger men.

Final count of the vote in Detroit, where the polls did not close until 10 o'clock tonight, will be a big factor. Although more than 109,000 voters are registered here, the total vote promises to approximate only 50,000.

Grand Rapids is one of the exceptions showing a heavy vote, due to local issues involved. More than 15,000 ballots were cast there during the day, along with a rush late this evening. In the Senatorship contest, Newberry was reported leading, with Ford second, and Osborn trailing.

In Lansing, the State capital, the vote was the lightest in years. Some districts showed only 20 per cent. of the registered vote cast, while the totals in adjacent rural districts were as low as half of that percentage.

First reports from five precincts in Big Rapids gave Newberry 194, Osborn 108, and Ford 80 Republican votes. A similar number of precincts in Oscooda County gave Newberry 115, Ford 56, and Osborn 29. Five out of forty-five precincts in Genesseo County, strong Newberry territory, showed 258 for that candidate, 147 for Ford, and 65 for Osborn.

Newberry managers claim his nomination by from three to four to one over Ford.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 27.—Arriving at Grove Park Inn this evening, in company with Thomas A. Edison John Burroughs, the naturalist; H. S. Firestone, and other companions of a nine-day camping trip through the country by automobile, Henry Ford said he had not known it was election day until some one told him.

Asked what he would do if he received both nominations, Mr. Ford replied:

"I would pitch a penny to decide which nomination I would accept or leave it to my secretary to decide. I would give a million dollars to be out of the matter, and I would not have been in it but for President Wilson's request."

Asked about the war, Edison said: "Man's foolishness, that's all you can make out of it, man is a damn fool."

BLEASE IS BEATEN.

Nat B. Dial Nominated for Senator in South Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 27.—Nat B. Dial of Laurens has been nominated for the long term in the United States Senate to succeed Benjamin R. Tillman, defeating both Cole L. Blease and James F. Rice in the South Carolina Democratic primary today. Early this morning Mr. Dial had a majority of approximately 10,000 over both his opponents, a lead of nearly 14,000 over Blease.

Many more votes are to be reported, but late returns are sustaining the average of the earlier developments and Dial's majority may be increased.

For the short term in the Senate, Christie Benet, incumbent, with 6,162 votes; William H. Pollock, with 7,041, and Thomas H. Peebles, with 5,295, were all running so closely that a second primary probably will be necessary.

Robert A. Cooper in the gubernatorial race had an indicated majority over two competitors, his total being 11,356, to 5,005 for John G. Richards and 1,796 for Andrea J. Bethea.

HORVATH SEIZES POWER IN SIBERIA BY COUP D'ETAT

Self-Appointed Dictator Assumes Control of All Russian Military Forces in Far East.

GOVERNMENT IS NONPLUSED

Unable to Organize Opposition to New Movement—Consuls Confer on Situation.

COSSACKS ROUTED BY REDS

Force Disguised as Peasants Attack Rear of Kalminoff's Position on Ussuri River.

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 23, via Shanghai, (Associated Press.)—General Pleshkoff, chief of the Russian forces in Siberia and Manchuria, acting on behalf of General Horvath, the anti-Bolshevist leader, by a coup d'état has assumed control of all the Russian militry forces in the Far East. The Russian volunteers have gone over to General Horvath in a body.

The Siberian Government is nonplused and has been unable to organize opposition to the new movement.

The consular officials are holding meetings to discuss the situation.

There has been no bloodshed.

Following the recent retirement of General Kalminoff's Cossacks in the Ussuri River district the Bolshevist Red Guards passed a force, disguised as peasants and traveling in farm wagons, to the right and rear of the Czechoslovak troops, and raked the Czechoslovak positions with field guns from a hill.

The Czechoslovaks were again forced to retire a considerable distance with casualties. The Japanese and American troops at the time were not in a position to support them.

The Red Guards made an unsuccessful demonstration against the railroad line between Nikolsk and Pogranitchina. They evidently intended to interrupt communication between Vladivostok and Harbin.

The second contingent of American troops has been established at the base at the head of the bay. The base has excellent storage and railway facilities and quarters for the arriving troops.

The commander of the forces has organized a labor battalion of 500 enemy prisoners, part of the large number taken by the Czechoslovaks, thus relieving the latter of feeding them. The men are working with apparent willingness.

Horvath's Aims in Siberia.

General Horvath, who has seized power in Siberia, is understood to have been informed on Aug. 8 by the representatives of the Allies assembled at Vladivostok to welcome their military contingent that they could not "support any Government until circumstances permit a free and full expression of the will of the people."

In July, after establishing a Provisional Government, Horvath had proclaimed himself dictator. This was a military expedient not intended to be permanent. His new move, therefore, may be the first step toward ascertaining "the will of the people" through a plebiscitum, or an attempt to establish a Government which will bring the desired recognition.

Lieut. Gen. Horvath is one of those men mentioned by the Russian advisers of the Allies as having "become prominent since the Bolshevist coup d'état of Nov. 7, 1917, and capable of exerting considerable influence."

Horvath's name began to appear in the dispatches about the middle of April, when several factions in Siberia asked for recognition by the Allies. Horvath was the leader of one of these. He called himself the "Military Commandant of Harbin."

Germans Put to Death for Refusing to Fight

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 27.—There are persistent rumors from a German source, says the frontier correspondent of the Telegraaf, that a German battalion on being ordered to the front unanimously refused to go, whereupon every tenth man was shot. The others then gave up their resistance.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sunday, Aug. 25, (Associated Press.)—German soldiers released from captivity in Russia have begun to arrive on the western front, it has been learned from prisoners captured in recent battles.

One hundred of these men who returned to Germany through the Ukraine were sent to a reserve division. Eighteen deserted before the detachment got out of Germany, while three were killed in jumping from a railroad train. The others reached their destination in a refractory mood. All the prisoners from this division agree that the men returned from Russia make the poorest kind of reinforcements. They are not only ill-humored, it is declared, but resent all discipline.

NEW DRAFT BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Vote Unanimous and All Attempts to Prevent Lowering Service Age Defeated.

NOW GOES TO CONFERENCE

"Work-or-Fight" Amendment Remains, Modified to Exempt Strikers Accepting Mediation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Without a single vote in the negative the Senate this afternoon passed the Man Power bill, under which 13,000,000 men between 18 and 45 years of age will be rendered liable to draft under the American flag. Senator Gore of Oklahoma voted against the bill, but later asked to be excused from voting, and thus formally withdrew his ballot. Seventy-five Senators voted affirmatively.

As passed by the Senate, the bill includes the "anti-strike" or "work or fight" amendment of Senator Thomas of Colorado, modified by the adoption of an amendment presented by Senator Cummins of Iowa. It was predicted tonight that the House would be found more favorable to the amendment than when the bill was passed by that body last Saturday by a vote of 336 to 2.

The bill will be sent to conference immediately. Leaders of the Military Committees in both houses hope to speed it. There is bound to be some controversy over the "work or fight" amendment, which provides that any worker of draft age ceasing work while physically able to continue shall become subject immediately to military service. The modification of this amendment, as presented by Senator Cummins, which was adopted 73 to 0, exempts from the original amendment strikers who abide by the decisions of the War Labor Board.

As perfected, the "work or fight" amendment reads:

The Amendment as Modified.

"That when any person shall have been placed in a deferred or exempted class for any of the reasons in this paragraph set forth, he shall not be entitled to remain therein unless he shall in good faith continue, while physically able so to do, to work at and follow such occupation, employment, or business, and if he fails so to do, he shall again become subject to the draft. The President shall make regulations for enforcing this provision.

"This proviso shall not apply in the case of a strike if the strikers have submitted or will at once submit the dispute to the War Labor Board, agree to abide and do abide by its decision, and do at once resume work and continue work pending such decision. The said board shall take up and decide all such disputes as speedily as practicable."

Senator McKellar of Tennessee moved to strike from the bill the entire "work or fight" amendment, but this motion was lost 40 to 29. Those voting for the McKellar motion were:

Democrats—Ashhurst, Beckham, Culberson, Fletcher, Gerry, Henderson, Jones, (N. M.,) Kendrick, Kirby, McKellar, Nugent, Overman, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Robinson, Saulsbury, Shafroth, Sheppard, Shields, Trammell, Vardaman, Walsh—23.

Republicans—Borah, Curtis, Fernald, Johnson, (Cal.,) McNary, Sutherland—6.

Total—29.

Voting to retain the amendment were:

Democrats—Bankhead, Chamberlain, Gore, Guion, Hitchcock, Johnson, (S. D.,) Martin, Pomerene, Ransdell, Smith, (Ga.,) Thomas, Wolcott—12.

BRITISH VICTORY GROWING

PRISONERS SHOW A CHANGE

Admit They Don't Look for Victory and Jeer at Their Captured Officers.

ALLIED FORCES' HOPES HIGH

See a Chance Now to Force a Quick Triumph, a Quick Peace, and Return to Normal Times.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 27.—Our troops have again advanced since yesterday morning on many parts of the front from the country north of the Scarpe beyond Arras to the ruined villages north and south of Bapaume and right across the old battlefields of the Somme to those woods of evil but heroic memory, Trones and Bernafay and High Wood and Vautu in the bend of the Somme, for which thousands of our men fought and died in the early years of this war.

Thank God, thousands of our men are not dying now to take them again, but are going forward with amazing ease in wide, sweeping movements which the enemy in most places is resisting only feebly, and only here and there has there been close and bitter fighting.

By bad luck and ill-health I have been away from this front for a few weeks, and now, as I come back again, it is startling to find what a change has taken place.

When I went away it was Rupprecht's army that was the chief threat against us, and it was an army of perhaps 250,000 fresh troops, apart from those in line waiting to be hurled against us if the German Crown Prince could do without them. We knew then that some of Rupprecht's divisions had been sent down hurriedly to his relief, but the question still remained whether the armies holding our part of the battlefront would still be strong enough to attack us or strong enough to check any attempt of ours to advance against them.

Since then the tide has turned in an astonishing way. It is now the enemy who is on the defensive, dreading the hammer blows that fall upon him day after day, and the initiative of attack is so completely in our hands that we are able to strike him at many different places.

Since Aug. 8 we must have taken nearly 50,000 prisoners and nearly 500 guns, and the tale is not yet told because our men are going on, taking new strides, new batches of Germans, and more batteries.

Mental Changes at the Front.

The change has been greater in the minds of men than in the taking of territory. On our side the army seems to be buoyed up with the enormous hope of getting on with this business quickly. They are fighting for a quick victory and a quick peace so they may get back to normal life and wipe this thing clean from the map of Europe and restore the world to sane purposes. That is, I am sure, their hope, and for almost the first time in very truth they see something of its reality in sight.

But there is a change also in the enemy's mind. Those German soldiers and their officers are changed men since March 21, when they launched their offensive. They no longer have even a dim hope of victory on this western front. All they hope for now is to defend themselves long enough to gain peace by negotiation. Many of them go even

Gouraud's 'Army of Generals' Lured Foe to Defeat; Commander Confided His Plans to His Soldiers

PARIS, Aug. 27.—"The Germans will attack tomorrow at dawn," said General Gouraud, in command in Champagne, to his soldiers on the evening of July 14. "We shall retreat to certain positions in our rear, where we must hold at all costs."

General Gouraud enumerated the positions, and, when at daybreak the German onslaught was launched, every soldier in Gouraud's army knew fully as well as his chief what plan of battle had been decided upon. Each soldier understood that he would give ground all along the battlefront for a depth varying from four to five kilometers, and then halt, hold and fight, perhaps die, but that he must retreat no further.

The commanding General thus took his soldiers into his confidence, elevating them to his own level by sharing with them the innermost secrets of the plan of battle. So it was an army of Generals that faced the German Emperor's soldiers when they started on what to them meant a jaunt to Paris, but, through the genius of Foch and the bravery of the allied soldiers, proved to be the first step of the return journey to Berlin.

The army began its retreat about 5 o'clock in the morning of July 15. Every yard of ground, which was grudgingly evacuated, was made uninhabitable for the enemy. Every trench, every shellhole, every depression was filled with poison gases. In that strip of land about fifteen miles long by three deep no human being could live

In sweltering heat and amid gases that kill even vegetation, three German divisions advanced. It is said that 40,000 Germans found graves in that part of the Champagne. The supporting divisions hesitated in their advance, then staggered and fled, horrified by the sight of their comrades dying in terrible pain. The German offensive was broken on its very first day.

AMERICANS FIGHT FOR TWO TOWNS

ARTILLERY DUEL INTENSE

Allies' Guns, Under Heavy Fire, Shell Infantry on Way to Reinforce Germans.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE VESLE FRONT, Aug. 27, (Associated Press,) (4 P. M.)—American troops today attacked the Germans in the region of Bazoches, three miles west of Fimes. Simultaneously the Germans attacked the American lines at Fismette, about a mile northwest of Fismes.

The Americans' attack on Bazoches was made in daylight, and they improved their positions, although the Germans resisted stubbornly. A stiff barrage preceded the American infantry advance and the bombardment was answered viciously by the Germans.

The American troops kept the upper hand in the conflict in the outskirts of Bazoches. There was some hand-to-hand fighting in the neighborhood, according to the latest accounts.

The Germans endeavored to reinforce their infantry fighting in the region of the village, but were unable to send up any large numbers of men owing to the activity of the French and American artillery on the hills south of the Vesle.

Germans' Furious Fire.

The Germans raked the bills with 77s in an effort to put out of commission the allied batteries. At one time they dropped fifteen shells each minute in the vicinity of St. Thibaut.

Notwithstanding the enemy's fire, however, the French and Americans continued to pour metal across the Vesle whenever any Germans appeared.

In their attack on Fismette the Germans bombarded the town with heavy guns and aerial bombs. German aviators endeavored to drive the Americans from the houses in Fismette so that German machine gunners in the hills could pick them off.

One German airplane descended within 500 feet of the Fismette roofs firing machine guns. The Americans drove it away with their machine guns.

7 MORE VILLAGES FALL WITH ROYE

MANGIN WINS ON AILETTE

He Advances His Lines East of Bagneux, Repulsing German Counterattacks.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Roye, the German base on the Avre, which has been an objective of allied attacks for weeks, fell today before the French under General Debeney, who captured half a dozen other towns in an advance on a front of more than twelve miles.

At some points the French gained ground to a depth of two miles and a half, forcing the enemy back on both sides of the Avre River.

Lively artillery duels were fought today in the Lassigny region and between the Oise and the Aisne.

In last night's fighting south of the Ailette the French advanced their lines 1,200 yards in the region east of Bagneux.

German Defenses Quickly Turned.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 27, (Associated Press.)—The first French Army, after beating the Germans in their battle positions before Roye, took the town today and is now pursuing the Germans, who are in retreat on a line extending from Hallu to the region south of Roye.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon General Debeney's men were in the region of Hattencourt, from where the line passes just west of Cremery and Gruny, by Carrepui, and to the west of Roiglise and west of Verpillières.

The French encircling tactics overcame the numerous machine-gun nests of the German defense. Strongly protected and heavily armed positions were turned, one after the other, until the enemy was obliged to abandon the first and then the second line of defenses of 1914, upon which he fell back after being driven out of Montdidier.

The Germans are now relying on their aviation to protect their retreat. Their airplanes were out in great number today, attacking the pursuing columns and engaging the French squadrons of observation and pursuit planes.

The final break in the German second line came this morning, when, after repulsing a counterattack upon St. Mard, the French infantry resumed the offensive. They completely encircled Roye, and threw the enemy back several miles east of the town.

In spite of fatigue from the long, hard campaign, General Debeney's men are going ahead with the ardor and enthusiasm of fresh troops.

BRITISH IN TURNING MOVE

Thrusts Along Arras-Cambrai Road Menace Main German Defenses.

PERONNE NOW THREATENED

Haig's Captures of Somme Heights Give Him Dominating Positions Six Miles Away.

BAPAUME A NO MAN'S LAND

German Reinforcements Rushed There—More Large Captures of Men and Guns.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Pushing their attacks eastward along the southern bank of the Scarpe today, the British have captured a considerable section of the Hindenburg line and pushed on, occupying Chérisy, Vis-en-Artois, and the Bois du Sart.

[This means an advance in the sector commanding the highroad to Cambrai of three or four miles in the last twenty-four hours. Such a thrust into German-held territory points to the flanking of the section of the Hindenburg line to the east and southeast of Bapaume.]

On the right of this advance, which was made by Canadian troops, Scottish soldiers crossed the Sensée River, seizing Fontaine-lez-Croisilles, and captured the slopes south of the village.

On the Canadians' left, north of the Scarpe, other Scottish battalions carried Roeux and Gavrelle, and English troops made themselves masters of Arleux-en-Gohelle and the old German line to the south.

New Zealanders and English, further south, between Croisilles and Bapaume, made progress at several points and repulsed heavy attacks by German reinforcements, inflicting severe losses.

Bapaume is deserted by the Germans, and its occupation by the British is regarded as only a matter of a few hours.

This morning a British attack was launched on a front of 8,000 yards north of the Somme. It swept eastward, capturing numerous positions on high ground which overlooks the whole course of the river to Péronne.

South of the Somme, Dompièrre has been taken, between which and Péronne is only six miles of rolling country.

The British artillery is following close upon the tanks and infantry. Many German guns were taken today, and the number of prisoners was considerable.

It is officially announced that the British have captured 21,000 Germans since last Wednesday.

Fighting on Forty-five-Mile Front.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 27, (Associated Press.)—Having been still further extended by attacks launched north of the River Scarpe, the battle today was raging along a field almost forty-five miles long, and the British, with renewed vigor, were rolling up the boche before them and sweeping constantly eastward.

Nearly in the centre of the battlefront hard fighting has been in progress along the old Hindenburg line in the neighborhood of Croisilles, Fontaine-lez-Croisilles, and Bullecourt, and, once through the Germans' strong defenses in this locality, open fresh ground remains beyond.

The Hindenburg line has actually been pierced at one place, east of Heninel, and the weaker portion of it, northwest of Fontaine-lez-Croisilles, has been captured and mopped up.

During today's fighting the British captured high ground from which they can overlook the country occupied by the enemy for miles around, and have thus attained a great advantage. The Bois du Sart, one of these places, lies south of the Scarpe and northeast of Monchy-le-Preux, and it was feared that here the enemy might hold up the advance for a time. It was captured, however, after a short but fierce struggle, in which the Germans lost heavily.

Another similarly valuable point is Montauban, northwest of Mametz, which fell this morning after the Germans had been given orders to hold at all costs. These orders were suddenly changed, and the enemy retreated.

Still another is Dompièrre, southeast of Cappy-sur-Somme. Dompièrre was reached in the forenoon. From this point there is low, rolling country all the way back to Péronne. Incidentally, the British at this place are now only six miles from Péronne, where the Somme bends to the south.

Bapaume a No Man's Land.

Bapaume, having been almost surrounded, has been entered by British patrols, and they have been fighting in the streets. The town, therefore, is a sort of No Man's Land for the moment.

Large reinforcements are being thrown in by the Germans in the neighborhood of Bapaume, especially at the town itself and in the area immediately south of it. Although there is much confusion in the enemy ranks, his resistance stiffened appreciably tonight.

Various sections of the front saw fresh attacks launched today. North of the Scarpe, where the operations, taken in conjunction with those south of the river, are gradually relieving the German pressure on Arras, the outskirts of Plouvain were reached, and the line then ran at an angle slightly west and due north from this point, with the British still going rapidly and the enemy resistance decreasing.

South of the Scarpe the British reached Pelves, but the situation there is uncertain. Almost directly south of it, however, the Bois du Sart and surrounding ground have been captured, and thus Pelves cannot possibly hold out for long.

London troops approached close to Croisilles, but a hot machine gun fire from that town and other indications that it was held by a large garrison, well protected in prepared positions, caused them to pause for a moment.

At the same time other troops attacked to the north against Fontaine-lez-Croisilles. Having reached the outskirts of that place, they then swung southward to outflank Croisilles. They are meeting with stiff resistance here, but the Germans are rapidly being overcome.

To the south of this place the British have pushed well to the east of St. Leger and are now fighting just northwest of Ecoust-St. Mein, between that town and Croisilles. Fighting likewise is in progress in the outskirts of Vaulx-Vrancourt.

East of Bapaume the line has been extended along the railway toward Cambrai.

Advancing Along the Somme.

Maricourt and the ground to the east of it are well in British hands. Trones station and wood and the ground to the east, which is valuable because it is high, were captured, as well as Moulin-de-Fargny on the Somme River bank, which was in the British front lines at the opening of the first battle of the Somme. Vaux Wood also was occupied, and is held firmly.

After an all-night fight Wancourt tower and town, south of the Scarpe, were taken, and the important Heninel Ridge, as well as Heninel village also were captured.

Most of the operations south of the Somme have been carried out by a comparatively "peaceful penetration," for the Germans in this territory are offering hardly any resistance, and the Australians are simply pushing ahead, rounding up villages, woods, and ground, without having any definite objective.

It was to the north of the Somme that the formidable organized attack was launched by the British on an 8,000-yard front this morning, and it was this which had such good results in ground-gaining. All the British guns have been moved up and are following close behind the infantry and the tanks.

The barrage laid down north of the Somme today was as heavy as any since the battle began, but the enemy counter-barrage was so thin as hardly to deserve the name. Obviously, the Germans are trying to save as many guns as possible. But, despite this, they lost a considerable number today. One small British formation alone has captured two complete seventy-seven German field batteries since yesterday. The capture of these light batteries is very significant. The Germans ran for their lives when the British suddenly appeared close to them, and did not even make an effort to save their guns.

The enemy machine gunners have shown a similar spirit, their principal idea apparently now being to save themselves, if that is possible.

Prisoners Jeer Their Officers.

German soldiers also have begun t exhibit the greatest contempt for their own officers, and are carrying their feelings right into the prisoners' cages. In a number of cages, into which thousands are pouring, the German soldiers have gone out of their way to be extremely insolent to their officers, jeering at them and loudly proclaiming their views in no uncertain manner.

Going to such lengths would undoubtedly result in court-martials and firing squads in Germany, and it is gathered from the prisoners that they go as far as they dare even on their side of the line. All the prisoners, men and officers, express their longing for peace by agreement.

The German 214th Division is the latest to meet with disaster. One of its battalion commanders, his Adjutant, and what remained of the staff were captured, while the unit itself was virtually wiped out.

The Canadians in their operations yesterday south of the Scarpe took more than 2,000 prisoners, and they continued their work of capturing large numbers today.

From present indications, it seems that at least on the southern end of the battlefield the Germans are slowly but surely going back over the Somme. The capture of Roye by the French will help the movement, while between there and the Somme there is every sign that the Germans have had enough. As a matter of fact, the action in this locality began to develop into resistance by rearguards alone three nights ago. Since then the British have had less and less difficulty in getting on. Continued success north of the Scarpe would soon leave the Germans further north in a continually deepening salient, which it would be difficult for them to hold.

Elements of nearly thirty German divisions, many of which have been badly hit and crippled, are striving to hold off the British. There are signs of ever greater confusion behind the German lines. Companies of various regiments have been thrown in almost any place. The strength of a large number of these companies has been whittled down until they hardly contain twenty-five men, according to prisoners, many more of whom have passed through the collecting cages.

Important Gains on the Somme.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 27, (Reuter's.)—The British have overrun Moulin de Fargny, Maricout, Bernafay Wood, and the Trones Wood, and have cleared the Vaux Wood and are now in entire possession of the high ground overlooking the course of the Somme right into Péronne. It is clear that the British pressure is compelling the enemy to carry his retirement much farther than was originally intended.

BRITISH VICTORY GROWING

By PHILIP GIBBS.

further than this and admit they do not care how peace comes so long as there is peace.

They are sullen with their own officers, and some of those whom I saw today were more than sullen. They were those captured today and yesterday by the Canadians in the country around Monchy, beyond Arras, nearly 2,000 of them, and when those who had been first taken saw batches of their comrades coming down they cheered and jeered and laughed with shouts of "Bravo!" as though they had gained the best of luck. They became excited when some of their officers were brought in, a battalion commander among them, with his Adjutant, and the survivors of two battalion staffs, and lounged up to the barbed wire of the inclosure which separated them, with cigarettes hanging from their lips and no sign of discipline or deference.

One of the officers was angry and commanded the men to whom he spoke to stand to attention, but they shook their heads and grinned, as much as to say, "All that is finished. We suffered too long under your tyranny. We are equal in captivity."

And that was their meaning, judging from some of their speeches to our officers and men. They complain that they have been deluded by hopes of victory and been sacrificed too often in the service of brutal command.

Even the officers are changed in their demeanor and speak gravely of their reverses and do not seek to minimize them. Only one officer maintained the same truculent pride of his caste with the Canadian officers today. He refused to admit that anything serious had happened to the German Army. Even when told how many prisoners had been taken lately, he said

"That is nothing. It is all according to our plan."

"Yes," said the Canadian officer, "but our plans are not yours," and at those words he was abashed.

I saw a batch of these prisoners coming down under the escort of some Canadian mounted men this morning. They were marching briskly and staring about them. They smiled at our soldiers who were marching in the opposite direction to the battlefront. Many of them looked tired and pale. Some of them limped, and a few were slightly wounded, but there was on all their faces the look of men relieved from fear and glad to be beyond its menace.

The men marching past them were Highlanders going up to support their comrades fighting to the north of the Scarpe. They came winding through a little wood of shelled trees. The color of their kilts twinkled through the trees, their brown faces were flushed with the heat of march, and they had the look of boys who were sure of victory, so different from those poor, pasty faced fellows in gray who had just gone by as prisoners.

Back Over Well-known Ground.

Well, it is queer to be back on the old familiar ground again, to be passing through Arras to get news of another battle at Monchy, through the old gray streets of Arras with its ruined churches and broken houses which hold a thousand memories of this war for us because it was in April of last year that other English and Scottish troops passed that way toward Monchy and Guemappe and Pelves, which they attacked again yesterday and today. The Canadians were on Vimy Ridge then. Yesterday some of them were up by Neuville-Vitasse and Wancourt, which London troops captured in the old days and London troops were fighting near those places this time.

The arrival of the Canadians was an immense surprise to the Germans. The last heard of them was outside of Roye after their glorious advance on the left of the French, and the last thing in the world which the enemy expected was to find them right in the north beyond Arras. That was a brilliant piece of secret manoeuvre. Before the Germans had any inkling of their presence the Canadians were advancing upon them yesterday morning with a sweep of shellfire in front of them. Without encountering much resistance, they swung around by Guemappe and Wancourt over the high ground on each side of the Cojeul. Germans of the 214th Division, made up of men from Rhineland, Stettin, Lower Schleswig, and Hessians were aghast at this sudden assault, and either retired or gave themselves up in the early stages of the Canadian advance. Their resistance stiffened on the crest of Monchy Hill, and there was fierce fighting all night in the trench on the top of Wancourt Spur.

A Bag of 1,800 Germans.

But the Canadians were determined to get this place, and with great individual gallantry and good leadership and most dogged spirit, they worked around the machine guns which were holding them off and rushed them in the darkness. By morning they held the spur, and this body of Canadians, who had taken over 820 prisoners yesterday morning, added another 150, with many machine guns, most of whom were caught in the valley below the ridge. All told the Canadians and Scots attacking with them had taken about 1,800 prisoners.

The highest point most desired by the Canadians was the old Wancourt tower on the tip of the crest and this they gained in time for a new departure this morning, having to change their direction three times owing to the lie of the ground and face south instead of east after the beginning of the battle, which is always a difficult operation.

A little further north other Canadian troops, who had crossed Orange Hill and Monchy, that hill which dominates many miles of country so that the loss of it a few months ago was serious to us, advanced again this morning to two woods on equally high ground beyond for which our men strove many times in vain in May of last year. Those are the Bois Du Sart and the Bois De Vert which we used to see like green eyes staring down on our lines around Wancourt and Henin and from which always there used to come wicked machine gun fire when any of our troops moved in the open valley below.

One German Division Wiped Out.

The Canadians apparently hold Bois du Sart, and it seems likely the other wood is in their hands, though I am not certain of this. In any case they have moved steadily forward in that direction, and also below and across the Sensee Valley toward the Drocourt-Queant line, which is the northern switch of the main Hindenburg line between Wancourt and Heninel.

I was with the Canadians this morning when the new advance had just started and over the wires came the good news. The Germans were falling back down their trenches toward Cherisy and their barrage of gunfire was thin. The 35th German Division of West Prussians had relieved the 214th Division and took part in counterattacks yesterday, but it is already discouraged and giving ground. The 214th is practically destroyed as a fighting power. Prisoners have been taken from every company of every battalion, including, as I have said, a battalion commander and adjutant and the survivors of two battalion staffs.

The success of our infantry is the more remarkable because in this battle very few tanks have been used and machine-gun nests had to be taken in many cases without their help.

To the north of Bois du Sart is one of the points of trouble because it is full of machine guns from which there is a wicked sweep of fire. The Scottish troops who were advancing on the north of the Canadians stormed Roeux and its old chemical works, long laid into ruin, where in the first battles of Arras there was most bloody fighting week after week in which the Scottish troops also were engaged. In Rouex they took a number of prisoners who were dejected men. One of their officers confessed he no longer took any interest in the war. "God is directing it," he said, "and will declare the issue." All the men long for peace by agreement.

South of the Canadians the Lowland Scotch and London troops yesterday worked around Henin Hill and fought forward toward Croisilles, which the enemy defended desperately. There was not much opposition on Henin Hill and the Scots advanced in a leisurely way so that our observers were filled with admiration for the cool courage of the men who kept driving the enemy in front of them. When they crossed the old end of the Hindenburg line this side of the Drocourt-Queant switch, which is now in the northern part of that line, and have been making further progress today.

The Londoners fought with the utmost gallantry on the western edge of Croisilles, where for a time they were checked by a blast of machine gun fire from the crest. Further south other troops, including Yorkshire battalions, are extending our gains north of Bapaume by Beugnatre and the sugar factory at Vraocourt in the direction of Bullecourt. In that region the enemy is fighting hard with strong counterattacks in which some of our men had heavy fire to face, though general success has been assured. The New Zealanders are forcing their way around the northern outskirts of Bapaume.

The Australians and other troops are steadily making their way across the Somme battlefields through old woods of ill-fame, like Bernafay and Trones, and Maricourt, and our line is now nearly straight up from near Vaux on the Somme to near Longueval and the southern outskirts of Bapaume.

German Hope of Victory Gone.

The Germans can make no stand in most of these places, and they know it. Personally I believe they are only fighting for time, hard rearguard actions to gain a few days and exact a price before they fall back on their old line of resistance on the other side of Peronne.

For them this retreat, which has completely wiped out their monstrous efforts which followed March 21, is a deadly blow to their military and national pride and proof that they will never gain a victory on the western front. They cannot hide this from the world nor from their own people, but do not let all this good success of ours lead us to false optimism and hopes beyond the touch of reality.

Unless the spirit of the German Army breaks more utterly than it has, we yet may find in spite of what I have written about the prisoners today that they will have the strength for a long and stubborn defense, and there must be many battles yet, more efforts by our men and long and stubborn patience on our part before the German high command will utter the word surrender or defeat.

Yet, while we face that frankly, nothing can be more wonderful or glorious than the victories which have been won by the valor of our men during recent days, victories which have broken the evil purpose of the German command and given us a wide margin of safety from the fingers which touched us very close.

GERMANS PREPARE FOR BIG RETREAT

Reported to be Working Feverishly on Hindenburg and Siegfried Lines.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 26.—Mangin's progress in the region of Bagneaux, though valuable as using enemy divisions and acquiring positions in view of subsequent operations, can hardly yet be regarded as threatening the Chemin des Dames, as has been suggested in some over optimistic quarters.

It is doubtful whether the French in this sector are yet able seriously to menace the Vesle line—situated considerably in advance of the stronger Chemin des Dames position—owing to the fact that pressure on either German line is bound to be endangered by the enemy forces in the formidable St. Gobain massif, which for long years has been the corner bastion of the enemy line in France.

What a French officer told me yesterday remains true today—it is on the British that the question of the German movement rearward for the moment depends. Doubtless, Ludendorff is already seriously considering the necessity, which may at any hour become imperative, of withdrawal not only in the north but from the Vesle, or even the Chemin des Dames, to the Hindenburg and Siegfried lines as held in the Autumn of 1917.

That would explain the obstinate resistance to Mangin's attacks—and also permit the evacuation of material and the reconstruction of the old defenses. From the north it is reported that spadework is progressing apace on the Hindenburg and Siegfried lines.

The question will arise whether the enemy can again check our advance by a reversion to trench warfare. Last year he was able to do so, but now four new factors have intervened to alter the situation

Firstly, the Germans, instead of retreating comfortably according to a long prepared plan to positions minutely organized beforehand, will be closely pursued by the Allies' dash—"at the sword's point," as the French say—and are bound to suffer from the disorganization of defeated units.

Secondly, German morale has been weakened by a series of disasters unparalleled in this war's history. Captured letters grow ever more despondent in tone, prisoners ever more despairing, and official orders that fall into French hands are ever more insistent on incidents of indiscipline. Now it is a reprimand to the artillery, whose fire it is complained is hardly less dangerous for the defenders than for the assailants. Now it is severe censure of the infantry for having shot down—and actually buried in secret—a German aviator who seems to have attacked them by "one of the accidents that may easily happen to German aviators." The last phrase, which I cite textually, is a sufficient avowal in itself. Another time it is instructions to officers to "use weapons without hesitation in case soldiers refuse to follow orders given."

The third factor is the change in offensive tactics that has resulted from Hutier's manoeuvre. Smoke, gas, and short but violent bombardment have put it in the power of a locally superior assailant to smash even the strongest land defenses by a sudden stroke. The Allies have learned the lesson, as the events of the last month prove beyond question.

Fourthly, there are the Americans. That our participation for the last few weeks has been comparatively unimportant in nowise means that the enemy has no further cause to dread it. The Germans themselves know well that the fourth factor is perhaps the most dangerous of all.

AUSTRIANS FACE AMERICAN BLOW

Fill Up Gaps in Lorraine Front, Whence Germans Have Been Moved West.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26.—The appearance of Austro-Hungarian troops on the Lorraine front has a poignant interest for the American Army. In Lorraine was established our first sector, which we still hold. On the line eastward from Verdun, United States troops are in line at many points. Through Alsace-Lorraine line is the shortest road into Germany, and the world knows that America intends to take the war to Germany. So it is very clear that if the Kaiser put many Austro-Hungarians on the Lorraine sector they will face the Americans.

In plain words, the announcement made in yesterday's French communiqué that the capture of prisoners in the Woevre and the Valley of the Meuse had identified Austrian and Hungarian units caused some surprise in the American Army. It has been known that for some time Austrian artillery has been used and many places on the western front have been manned, in some cases by Austrians, but the failure of Austro-Hungarian infantry to make its appearance thus far had produced the impression that they would stay away.

Opposed in Dual Monarchy.

It was known that Austrian politicians had considered the question of sending troops to the western front, but it also was known that public sentiment in the Dual Monarchy was against it. Now it appears that Emperor Charles has dared the people's anger in order to knuckle to Kaiser Wilhelm's demand for troops. Those now in the Vosges and Lorraine may be the nine divisions for which the German Emperor asked the Austrian Emperor at their recent conference.

The identifications made in the fighting in the Marne salient and the recent battles of the English and French have shown that numbers of divisions were drawn from the Lorraine sector. Now the Kaiser is trying to stop the gaps with soldiers borrowed from Emperor Charles. There is one way of looking at the situation which might cause disappointment, in the belief that the Allies' task may be made somewhat harder on the western front because the Kaiser has this new source of man power. But perhaps a broader view would be that it is the allied task to whip the Central Powers and the location of battles makes small difference in the long run.

With her other allies, America is pledged to give military aid to Italy, and has already started. If part of the Austrian Army wishes to come to the Vosges to get whipped instead of having it done in Northern Italy, perhaps it will all add up the same about the end of next year. And may not the sending of Austrian troops to the western front open a path for new Italian victories? For no one seriously believes the Kaiser is going to send Germans to the Austrian front to replace the men Emperor Charles is giving him. If Germany and Austria have, after all, pooled their military man power, or, rather, if Austria has completely surrendered its sovereignty and respect to Wilhelm, and is to put her fighting men in Prussian uniform, the fact might as well be known now as later.

Although there are now indications that the Central Powers intend to place Austro-Hungarians on that part of the front where there are many Americans, I can make this authoritative statement—so long as Italy remains in the war, and that means until the end, the Central Powers cannot, under any conditions, place sufficient Austro-Hungarian soldiers on the western front to overturn the numerical superiority that American assistance will have given the allied effective forces at the expiration of the next two months.

CHANGES IMPENDING ON THE VESLE FRONT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 27.—There are signs that the situation on the American front along the Vesle may not much longer remain of a stabilized nature.

The advance of General Mangin's army north of Soissons has threatened German positions between the Vesle and the Aisne to such an extent that a further allied advance in that sector would force a hasty German retirement behind the Aisne River. That the German high command fears an effort in this direction and doubts its ability to maintain the present positions, with the Americans and French constantly harassing the enemy on the south, is shown by reports received today that guns and supplies were being taken across the Aisne in large quantities.

Our guns in increasing volume are shelling the crossroads and strategic positions behind the Vesle and accomplishing great damage. For instance, the suspicion having been aroused that certain woods north of the Vesle sheltered a Hun ammunition dump, the American batteries were told to fire there yesterday. Ten minutes afterward 800 55s cut loose in that direction. Four big explosions were observed, followed by fires. We are also using a considerable quantity of gas.

Of the five divisions of Germans in front of the Americans three are crack divisions, showing that the German command is taking no chances with our troops and leaving no weak spot for them to break through. Should the Germans retire in every probability they will continue to follow the Hindenburg policy of making an advance as costly as possible for the Americans.

At any time in the past two weeks the French and Americans could have pushed to the Aisne by paying a certain price, but to do so has not been part of General Foch's plans. However, it would occasion no surprise if the Crown Prince were soon forced to announce a strategic victory of retreat away from his Vesle line. There are several ways by which this might be brought about.

The small brushes of a local nature that have been constantly going on between the Americans and the Germans have occurred without material change in the line, and each side sends out a score or more of patrols each night, which has led to considerable close hand fighting in No Man's Land. Each side has inflicted casualties on the other, and each side has lost some prisoners, but nothing much has resulted except that in the last two days the Americans have bettered their line along the railroad north of the river near Fismes. We captured thirty machine guns in good condition and destroyed twenty more which the Germans had damaged.

Seven prisoners who were brought in yesterday from a Guard division showed something of the change in morale that crack German units have undergone. The men said they no longer felt that Germany could win the war, but were very confident the Allies could not get a decision. Heretofore members of Guard divisions always have expressed confidence in Germany's complete success.

DANGER OF GAS CONSTANT

Men Make No Complaints and Face German Shelling with Unbroken Morale.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—It would be hard to imagine a greater contrast than that between Paris and the Vesle front. A few hours' ride brings one back to the capital, which is no longer under menace from guns and where the current of life now runs smoothly.

Getting back to Paris on "hot water morning" and to the luxury of first-class hotels makes the American front, with its dangers and inconveniences, seem like a faraway world. A friend whom I saw near the Vesle and who was back in a Paris hotel this morning said:

"No man could go into that battle zone and not feel that it was a great privilege to share for a few hours a small part of the dangers and inconveniences with our soldiers, who endure them day in and day out. And no man can come back to this luxury afterward without a certain sense of unworthiness. No matter what we or those at home are doing to help on the war, our sacrifices are small compared to those of the officers and men who are giving their lives so gallantly."

Soldiers Eager for Home News.

And yet among the soldiers one finds only cheerfulness and optimism. About the only complaint they have is a lack of newspapers and information about what is going on in the outside world. Beyond the small sectors in which they live and die they know but little of what is passing.

Two nights ago at battalion headquarters we sat on the lee side of a small stone house in the harvest moonlight with boche shells singing overhead and bursting beyond us. Junior officers gathered around eagerly to talk of London, Paris, New York, and the progress of the war generally.

A more delightful experience than this intimate personal contact with these cheerful, brave, modest young Americans it would be difficult to conceive. We discussed the familiar topics of Broadway and Times Square, the details of the American effort, civilian conditions in London and Paris, the state of German morale, Foch's strategy, and so forth.

The battalion commander and one of his Captains had been moving in and out, and finally disappeared around the house. At bedtime I asked where they were in order to say good night, and learned that they had gone to a party which was booked for daylight the next morning on the River Vesle.

About 11 o'clock the following day I went to battalion headquarters, and at the door heard a voice raised in song in a back room. It sounded like familiar music on the Lower Mississippi River, and I was sure that a darky was somewhere about. Upon investigation, however, I found that it was the battalion commander, who was just getting up after two or three hours' sleep and giving vent to his feelings in song.

Presently the junior officers just back from the show came in, and I had the treat of listening to first-hand reports of their successful little performance, which had driven the Germans back across the Vesle at one point.

Men Sleep on the Ground.

In the wood where I slept was a transport section, where there was only one officer, a Second-Lieutenant, who was a sort of gypsy king over his thirty men and fifty horses. The men nearly all slept on the ground, naked above the waist, as it was night. There are no mosquitos, but millions of flies. Our artillery was barking all night behind us, but for one night the experience was interesting and not uncomfortable.

In the morning we had a breakfast of fresh fried doughnuts with sorghum syrup poured over them, and a pint of coffee. A fine breakfast it was, and cooked by an Italian-American who owns a wine store in Brooklyn.

We never let our gas masks get more than twelve inches away from us. When walking or riding they must be worn alert, which means up under the chin, with the cases open, so that they can be put on in a few seconds if a shell bursts near.

My means of locomotion, other than walking, which is always the safest, was in a ration cart. My driver, who was a private soldier, is the son of a New York shipbuilder. He could have stayed at home to help in the shipyard, but preferred coming to France as a private.

He and others of his unit take rations and ammunition to the front trenches under cover of night, the Lieutenant commanding being on horseback. It is a very important job, and the men have to be very careful to avoid the shells of the alert boche gunners, who keep a thorough watch on the transport service.

The enemy artillery in this sector has the advantage of temporarily better air service. Boche airplanes are flying about all the time, observing and taking photographs. This condition will be remedied shortly by augmentation of the American supply of planes.

Our men are quicker and more enterprising about tackling French than other English-speaking soldiers. I heard many of them making a stagger at conversation with natives, and some of them gave French pronunciation to Vesle, Fismes, and Nesle, (like Vale, Feem, and Nale.) The British would never accommodate themselves to the French pronunciation. Ypres is still "Wypers," and will so remain while the British hold that sector.

Food is abundant and good. At officers' mess we had excellent roast beef and vegetables, and the ever-present molasses to pour over bread or cake.

The impression prevailed that the Germans kept up an incessant gunfire either to cover their retreat or demoralize the Americans in the back area. If the latter was the purpose, it failed completely, as the Americans soon became accustomed to it and paid little attention.

Though men and horses were occasionally hit, it seemed to me, on the whole, that the soldiers rather enjoyed the excitement. Certainly the expenditure of ammunition was not justified by the damage done. With all their shelling, we give them back three or four for one.

A party of sixteen German prisoners brought in while I was at battalion headquarters looked well fed and seemed to be good soldiers. Several were youngish. They were a sullen lot, refusing to reply to questions and shaking their heads when asked if any of them spoke English. They had white bread and a well-known brand of American tobacco, which they had taken from the bodies of dead Americans. It is seldom, lately, that they have had a chance to do this, but last week they got a little American territory, which was promptly recovered by a counterstroke.

Salvation Doughnuts

Irvin Cobb, the writer, pays a glowing tribute to the work of the Salvation Army and their humble doughnuts for our boys in the trenches.

He says the Salvation Army lacks a press agent. The good that they are doing far outstrips public knowledge. The work of the Salvation Army needs advertising.

When our troops return victorious, we will be told this by word of mouth, but in the meantime an opportunity for establishing a greater Good Will with the American public is not fully realized.

Good Will rests on common knowledge. Good Will may be profitably secured for armies or for army shoes whether in times of war or times of peace, by securing the common knowledge of merit.

AMERICANS FIGHT FOR TWO TOWNS

night, when units on the Woevre front repulsed a German raid without serious loss.

One American sustained sixteen machine gun bullet wounds—three in the calf of the leg, ten between the knee and the waist, and three in the arm—but fought on. He will recover and be able to return to the fray. This soldier probably holds the American record for simultaneous wounds.

Another American was badly wounded in the stomach from fragments of a grenade, and his nose was blown off and his face torn. He continued to fight the Germans, and had almost to be forced to go to a dressing station.

Official Reports of the Day's Operations

British

LONDON, Aug. 27.

Night Report—This morning our troops, operating astride the Scarpe, again attacked. Overcoming the resistance of the enemy in his old front-line defenses held prior to his offensive of March 21, the Canadians penetrated deeply into the German positions between the Sensée and Scarpe Rivers, and captured Cherisy, Vis-en-Artois, and the Bois du Sart, with many prisoners.

On the right of the Canadians, Scottish troops crossed the Sensée and seized Fontaine-lez-Croisilles, establishing themselves on the slopes of the spur south of the village and taking several hundred prisoners.

North of the Scarpe other Scottish battalions carried Roeux, Greeland, (?) and Gavrelle, and English battalions gained possession of Arleux-en-Gohelle and the old German line south of this.

Between Croisilles and Bapaume and to the south, English and New Zealanders again in heavy fighting repulsed numbers of determined counterattacks delivered by German divisions recently brought up to reinforce the battlefront. Heavy losses were inflicted on these divisions in their unsuccessful attacks.

Despite their efforts to prevent our advance our troops stormed the village of Beugnatre and progressed at several points between Beugnatre and Croisilles.

South of Bapaume also English and Welsh troops gained ground in the face of strong opposition. We reached the western outskirts of Flers and have driven the enemy from Longueval, Delville Wood, and Bernafay Wood. Counterattacks by the Prussian Guard in this area were repulsed.

Astride the Somme Australian, English, and Scottish battalions forced the enemy back on the whole front of our attack. Our troops gained the high ground east of Maricourt.

Fontaine-lez-Cappy and the woods between there and the Somme have been taken, with some hundreds of prisoners, and Vermandovillers is in our hands.

Day Report—Severe fighting took place on the field of the old Somme battle between Maricourt and Bapaume, and also north of the latter town, yesterday afternoon and evening. The enemy counterattacked repeatedly in strength, incurring great losses from the fire of our troops, but being unable to arrest our progress.

English and Welsh troops pushed through Montauban and advanced along the crest of the ridge, capturing High Wood and reaching Longueval. In the latter village we were heavily counterattacked and forced back toward Bazentin-le-Grand and High Wood. On this line we broke the enemy's attack, and, again advancing, established ourselves well to the east of High Wood.

Early in the night a second enemy counterattack was driven off by rifle fire before the Germans reached our position.

North of High Wood the enemy twice counterattacked in the neighborhood of Ligny and Thilloy, pressing back our advanced troops some 400 or 500 yards. There his infantry was stopped and driven back.

At Bapaume the New Zealanders after fierce fighting established themselves in the northern outskirts of the town.

Further north English troops progressed toward Beugnatre. We have had hard fighting about Croisilles.

On the right of the battlefront the Australians continued their advance astride the Somme and made substantial progress toward Dompierre and to the east of Suzanne.

On the left of the battlefront the Canadians yesterday captured the ridge to the east of Wancourt and established themselves to the east of Guemappe.

North of the River Scarpe Scottish troops renewed their attack last night, and they have made substantial progress toward Plouvain.

Prisoners taken since the morning of Aug. 21 exceed 21,000.

French

PARIS, Aug. 27.

Night Report—The enemy was forced today to hasten his withdrawal on both sides of the Avre.

On a front of twenty kilometers [more than twelve miles] our troops advanced more than four kilometers [about two and one-half miles] at certain points. We occupied Hallu, Fransart, Cremery, Gruny, Carrepui, Roye, Baucourt, Laucourt (?) and Crapeaumesnil.

The artillery fighting continued lively in the region of Lassigny and between the Oise and the Aisne.

Day Report—South of the Avre French troops accentuated their progress this morning in the region of St. Mard, after having repulsed a number of enemy counterattacks. We have taken more than 1,100 prisoners during these combats. Of these 36 are officers, two of whom are battalion commanders.

Between the Oise and the Aisne German counterattacks west of Chavigny broke down last evening. Thirty prisoners remained in our hands. In the region east of Bagneux we have advanced our line about 1,200 meters.

During the night there were lively artillery duels between the Ailette and the Aisne.

German

BERLIN, Aug. 27, (via London.)

Night Report—The main point of the attempt to break through by the English and Canadian troops lay south of the Scarpe. The thrust was stemmed in our positions on both sides of the Arras-Cambrai road.

Day Report—During the day there has been heavy fighting between Arras and the Somme. East of Arras the enemy attacked on both sides of the Scarpe. North of the river his attacks were arrested before our battleline, which had been bent back on Roeux.

South of the Scarpe our foremost troops yielded on command to enemy attacks made with numerous tanks and strong infantry forces and withdrew to the heights of Monchy-le-Preux.

There the fire of our infantry and artillery, standing ready to repel the attacks, received the enemy, and after a bitter fight the adversary pressed forward over Monchy and Guemappe Heights. Our counterattack threw him back to the east slope of the heights.

A storming attack directed against Chérisy collapsed before that place.

The enemy continued his attacks on both sides of Bapaume with the heavy bringing in of tanks. North of Bapaume the heights southeast of Mory and Beugnatre were the foci of the battle. After several futile storming attacks the enemy got a foothold in the heights in the evening. Beugnatre, after long fighting, still remained in our hands.

Southwest of Bapaume the enemy established himself in Thilloy and Martinpuich. The remainder of the enemy attacks, repeated here on a broad front until late in the evening, collapsed sanguinarily.

Destroyed enemy tanks are lying before and behind our lines. South of Martinpuich the enemy pressed forward over Bazentin into Montauban. We threw him back out of Montauban by a counterthrust. Enemy attacks south of Montauban also came to a standstill.

GEN. MAURICE FINDS NEW SPIRIT IN ARMY

Relief from Dullness of Trench Warfare Reflected in Conduct of British.

Haig's Method of Training Regarded as Model for Allies—Work of Staff Praised.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Is a complete military victory possible in the west? I have just had the advantage of spending a week on the British front in France. In that time I have been enabled to cover a great deal of country. I have been given facilities for observing much, both on the ground recently won from the enemy and elsewhere, and have seen our men at work under a great variety of conditions. Throughout my visit I have had in my mind the question which I have chosen as the title of a series of articles in which I propose to convey my impressions to my readers. It is the vital question of the moment, for on the answer to it depends the reply which we will give to the enemy's diplomatic offensive; and this we must expect at any time now.

What has struck me most has been the change of atmosphere since I was last in France. That was in the middle of April last. Then the German drive toward Amiens had been checked, but the Franco-British front in that quarter was still far from secure. The enemy's offensive in Flanders was at its height, and Foch had just been appointed to the supreme direction of allied operations. Our army was grimly determined, but tired, angry, and sore. It had proved itself to be better than the enemy on anything like fair terms. It was quietly confident before the attack came. When it did come, the result was a great shock, for the army felt it had been let down. It had been attacked by the enemy in overwhelming superiority, and it realized that the chief preparation to meet the German onslaught had been an extension of the line into the very area in which the blow fell and a drastic reduction in the establishment of the infantry. Some one had blundered.

Trench War Demoralizing.

Our army is still new, and when things go wrong the defects of a new organization become apparent. It is very slow business to establish such mutual confidence between the parts of an army as will stand the strain of disaster, and most difficult of all is it to establish such confidence between the staff and regimental officers under present conditions.

By far the greater part of the experience of the British Army as it is today has been trench warfare, and trench warfare is most exacting, is often deadly, dull, and, being largely a matter of routine and organization, kills initiative. Parts of the army cannot intermingle and get to know each other when they are living below the surface of the ground as they can when assembled for training or when engaged in war of movement.

This is a fact which has never been given proper weight in the many discussions which have led to the extensions of our front, though Sir Douglas Haig has repeatedly insisted on the vital importance of training in his dispatches. His arrangements for training when he has men to train are quite admirable, and have served as a model to more than one of our allies. If our army is to follow with a mature organization, a fair proportion of troops must always be out of line, not merely for rest, but that they may find their places in the machinery of war.

This was impossible during the days of stress. Drafts from home had to be used at once to refill the depleted ranks, and divisions hastily reconstructed had to be sent back to the struggle before the men and officers had learned to know each other. The troops were faced with conditions which were often very different from normal trench warfare, and too much was asked of the staff, who were blamed for not doing the impossible.

Staff Bore the Blame.

The precise cause of the failure was lack of practice in working together, but most of the critics of the staff did not know this. The staff was said to be the preserver of the old army. It was narrow-minded, inefficient, made no use of the brains of the country in the new armies, and grabbed the lion's share of promotion and honor. All this talk, which was usually very ill-informed, led to a want of confidence and friction, both of which were fostered by agitation in certain quarters at home against the staff and officers of the old army. Most of the critics had but vague ideas as to what the staff is and what its duties are. The Generals in command of fighting staffs and administrative staffs were all lumped together and condemned. Many new army officers, being men of business experience, chafed at the military routine and red tape which they ascribed to the narrow minds of the old army, being unaware that the administrative system of the army has in the main been imposed upon it by the civil administration, and that most professional soldiers have spent their lives in trying to reduce it to a form which could be made applicable to war.

If the staff desired to defend its organizing and business capacity, it had only to point to the superb achievement by which the army has been kept supplied at the right time and at the right place with every requisite, despite the loss of vitally important railway communications, and the all but insuperable difficulties involved in re-sorting the greater part of the administrative organization when our front was driven up. I shall have a word to say about this later.

Praise for Americans.

The whole tone and spirit of the army has now changed from the days when weariness and disappointment gave rise to criticism and recrimination. Our front has been left in peace for three invaluable months, during which enormous strides have been made in the work of reconstruction. Wonderful to relate of the British soldier, during the whole of my visit I heard no grousing except regarding leave, and that is rapidly being put right. Everywhere along our front the old sense of superiority over the enemy has been re-established. Our men are cheery and confident; the Germans are nervous and depressed.

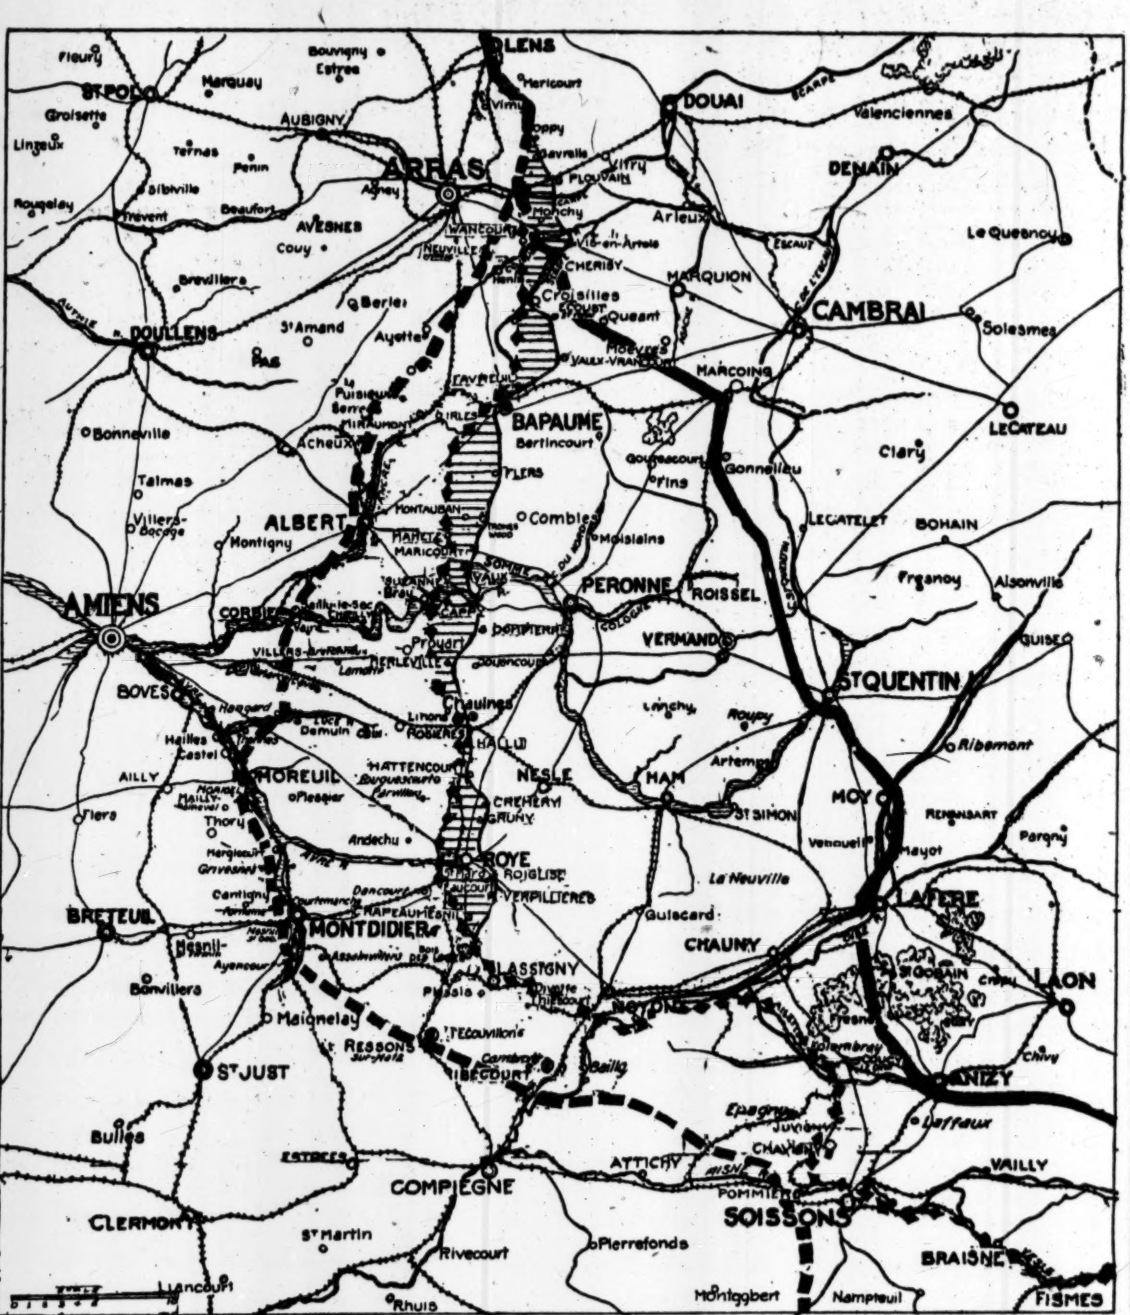
The advent of the Americans has allowed us to keep troops out of the line for training, and the army has again found itself. It is not by any means only by the numerical reinforcement which America has brought into the field that she has helped to turn the scale. It would be impossible to overrate the value of the infusion of fresh and vigorous life into the allied ranks in the fifth year of war, when there is a natural tendency for those who have borne the heat and burden of the day to become stale. The Americans emanate keenness and vitality which is infectious, while their fresh outlook upon questions which to us have become stale by long use and their racy fashion of expressing their views are most inspiring.

GERMANS TALK OF REPUBLIC

Prisoners Express Hope of a Change in Form of Government.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Monday, Aug. 26, (Associated Press.)—The idea of a change of form in the Government of Germany seems to occupy a place in the thoughts of many German soldiers, judging from remarks made by prisoners. One of those who has expressed hopes of a change was a soldier from Baden. He said he and his comrades had had more war than they wanted and hoped that as soon as war was over Baden would become an independent republic.

Scene of New British and French Advances



Besides smashing through the northern part of the Hindenburg line for three or four miles southeast of Arras, the British yesterday made substantial gains on both sides of the Somme, approaching to within six miles of Péronne, while the French captured Roye and forced the Germans back on a twelve-mile front. ……….
Shaded areas show the ground gained in these operations.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The Germans, finding themselves unable longer to resist the pressure of the French forces south of Chaulnes, are in retreat toward the Canal du Nord. They evacuated yesterday a broad belt of territory between Chaulnes and Fresmeres, giving up a number of villages and the once important centre of Roye. The importance of Roye, however, passed some time since. The only possible advantage it may have held was in the fact that the French infantry had not yet crossed the more important highways which radiate eastward from the town. But in the fighting of yesterday the highways from Roye to Nesle and Peronne were passed completely, destroying any value that Roye might have, except as a point de resistance. The Germans, therefore, evacuated the town.

It is true, however, that this move was not altogether voluntary. The French were especially active north and south of the town and were gradually encircling it. The German movement was, therefore, an effort to avoid envelopment.

The Germans must go back to the Canal du Nord eventually. They may postpone the retreat some little time while they are removing all possible artillery and shells, but the end is inevitable. It will be a distinct loss to them to give up the powerful massif which lies just south of the Roye-Noyon highway. It is a most powerful guard to their southern flank, and one which will be much needed. But the French operations in the north, which are resulting in a steady and uninterrupted advance of their lines, will turn these positions completely, and leave the Germans no other alternative. It is nearly six miles from the nearest point on the French line to the canal, and it may take some time to cover this distance. But the Germans will have to show much greater power of resistance than has recently appeared if they are going to defend it.

The changes in the French line incident to the German withdrawal are not yet vital. It is more in the nature of a straightening out of the line than the beginning of a definite retreat for any distance. But it is the first step by which the French will flank and turn the massif which I have referred to. The circle is being drawn with smaller radius, and the peril increases with each shortening of the diameter.

The British, having come to an impasse about Chaulnes, have temporarily given up the direct fighting on this section of the front and are working their way eastward north of Chaulnes on both sides of the Somme River. What they failed to obtain by frontal methods they are now seeking to secure by the familiar enveloping processes. To have continued their efforts before Chaulnes would have involved the expenditure of a considerable number of men, and would not have accomplished any adequate results compared with a similar movement further north. Therefore every effort is being made to advance astride the Somme in order to turn the entire line from the Somme to the point of juncture with the French forces.

Coincident with this move is a similar operation in the north against the old Hindenburg line. This operation has been surprisingly successful. Even the most sanguine of the allied populations have felt that when this line was reached there would be a marked diminution in the rate of progress. Indeed, many have thought that the offensive would cease entirely. But in the last two days the Canadians have not only reached the Hindenburg line, but have gone beyond it a distance of nearly four miles at the furthest point—Vis-en-Artois. This is but an extension of the movement in the south along the Somme.

By their advance down the Arras-Cambria road the Canadians are adding another hook in the northern end of the line on which the entire line of the Germans, both north and south, must swing. Just as Arras has been the pivotal point in the allied line, so this section of the Hindenburg line had proved the hinge of the German line. That was the reason for the heavy and terribly costly efforts of the British in the Spring of 1917 at both Bullecourt and Fontaine-les-Croisilles. It was apparently felt, and with reason, that if this hinge could be broken the entire German line would be shaken in both directions, north and south. The Canadians are well across the Sensee River, and are operating both parallel to it and astride it. They have advanced over practically all of the high ground between their old lines and the level country west of Cambrai.

The old Oppy-Queant line of 1917 has been crossed and left behind, and, while these towns have not been taken as yet, the line between then has gone. This is the most important move the Allies have yet made, in so far as its effect on the German line as a whole is concerned. Not only does it provide the necessary envelopment to shake the German grip on the country north of Bapaume. It also throws into jeopardy the German lines north to Lens, which are astride the muddy and difficult valley of the Souchez. The mere fact that the Hindenburg line—that bugbear of allied hopes—has been so badly broken tells its own tale of the dwindling of German man power under the allied attacks.

ENEMY PEACE PLOTS DESTINED TO FAIL

Allies Ignoring the Activities of Ex-King Constantine and Others in Switzerland.

DOOR CLOSED ON INTRIGUE

America's Strength Regarded as Guaranteeing Nothing Less Than a Dictated Peace.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Reports of activity in the entourage of ex-King Constantine in Switzerland have been reaching England at intervals since the deposed monarch left Greece and had the sum of $400,000 placed to his credit in a Zurich bank. Count von Bülow, whose predisposition to peace intrigues is well known, and Prince von Hohenlohe, chief of the German propaganda in Switzerland, have been frequent visitors to Constantine, and at all times his villa is a nest of pro-German plotters.

News of the visits of relatives, who have been invested with the rôle of emissaries of this or that potentate of the Central Powers in the fertile imagination of Swiss journalists, also has been telegraphed abroad. All these doings and goings and comings, however, have now ceased to create even a ripple of excitement in informed quarters.

The days when overtures to end this war between democracy and autocracy can be initiated by mysterious personages meeting in secret conclave in the fashion beloved of certain sensational novelists are dead and gone. Peace intrigues there undoubtedly will be, and latterly there have been rumors of another projected visit by a Dutch diplomatist, who is expected to come with some more or less specific mandate from enemy quarters. The failure of any such mission can be predicated in advance.

Overtures looking to a separate peace by one or the other of Germany's unfortunate allies belong, of course, to an altogether different category, and secrecy in the early stages at least would be essential to their proper conduct by the diplomacy of the Entente. The French Government's action in regard to Emperor Carl's letter to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon can be instanced in that connection.

But the democracies of Europe now have their minds made up in regard to peace intrigues designed to save the skin of German Junkerdom. Parenthetically, ex-King Constantine's record in Greece peculiarly unfits him for the rôle of a successful plotter on Germany's behalf.

America's attitude in regard to the sort of peace which alone will make the world safe for democracy has breathed a new spirit into the war-worn democracies of Europe. A "dictated peace" has taken the place of a "negotiated peace" in the war phraseology of the present period. However incorrect the phrase may prove as a description of the exact method in which the war will be terminated, the designation "dictated peace" very aptly reflects the prevailing public opinion. Rightly or wrongly, the belief that next year may see Germany on her knees suing for peace and proffering adequate guarantees has gained much ground since the rush of the American legion in this greatest of all crusades redressed the balance on the western front. With the tide of victory turned, this aid is promising to flow overwhelmingly as it is swelled by the new millions guaranteed by the Man Power bill.

German peace offers, however speciously they may be presented, will be scrutinized closely and are likely to stand little or no chance of acceptance unless they do really satisfy the demand for democratic security and the now fully reawakened determination and renewed enthusiasm of the nations which stood in the breach four years ago.

BELIEVE FOE SEEKS GENERAL RETREAT

Paris Observers Say Ludendorff Holds On Because of Danger of Retirement.

FOCH MENACES ALL EXITS

Constant Hammering by Allies Prevents Germans from Reorganizing in the Rear.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Ludendorff is undoubtedly anxious to effect a retreat on a large scale to safer positions well in the rear, and all indications tend to show he would have done so as long as a week or two ago had the circumstances been different. The reasons why he has not done so are believed here to be twofold.

In the first place, Foch has dealt him four heavy blows since the 8th of the present month. Following Mangin's staggering flank attack between Soissons and the Marne on July 18, which smashed all the enemy's carefully laid plans to smithereens and wrenched the initiative from him, Rawlinson and Debeney struck between the Ancre and Avre on Aug. 8, and between the Matz and Oise on Aug. 10. Mangin again struck between the Aisne and Oise on Aug. 18, and Byng between the Scarpe and Ancre on Aug. 21.

To meet these repeated blows and stave off disastrous defeat in place after place, the German High Command have had to throw in all available reserves to such an extent that the enemy had neither time nor men available to prepare new line positions in the rear on which to fall back.

This supplies the second good reason why Ludendorff has been unable to repeat the great coup of the famous retreat to the Hindenburg line of the Spring of last year. The tactics of Foch not only rendered impossible a repetition of such a retreat, which was effected without the loss of a man or gun, but compelled the Germans to fight desperately on every yard of the battlefront under the sheer necessity of avoiding being annihilated where they stand.

Foch Make Retreat Difficult.

The unceasing series of defeats we are now witnessing is thus doubly disastrous for the enemy. Ludendorff desires above everything to retreat, but Foch won't let him. He is so short of men that he can't spare any to prepare new positions in the rear, and Foch has them in such a grip that even such few fresh troops as he can obtain, such as the Austrians, can't be used to reinforce his line, but only to fill the gaps caused by his enormous losses in killed, wounded, and prisoners under the relentless pressure of the Allies.

As Paris sees it, the Germans today are in by far a worse situation than at any time since the war began. They are, in fact, in a very similar position to that from which Hindenburg escaped by his masterly retreat last year, with the vital difference that, if they are now forced to retreat, the consequences, at least to the armies of von Boehm, must be disastrous.

These armies occupy a huge pocket enormously deeper than Montdidier or the Marne. Byng is eating into this pocket on the north and Mangin on the south. Mangin may expect to meet serious difficulties to his further progress when he comes against the enormously strong enemy positions in the Forest of Saint Gobain in front of Laon, but nothing of this sort can prevent the British under Byng and Rawlinson from continuing to push Boehm's armies back toward Cambrai and Saint Quentin.

On the other hand, the country over which the enemy must retreat in falling back from Chaulnes, Roye, and Noyons is exceptionally unfavorable for an army to which ease and rapidity of movement are imperative if it would escape from the victorious pursuing adversary.

Von Boehm's armies have to face the awful ordeal of crossing a broad belt of waterlogged ground on each side of the Somme, where every bridge will be under the fire of our guns and airplanes.

Narrow Exit from Noyon.

The situation of the enemy's forces who will have to retreat from the Noyon region is probably even worse. As a glance at the map will show, the only way out for them is this: The armies have to face in a direction which will be through a narrow strip of country not more than ten miles wide, which lies between the Oise and the Somme. Mangin even now holds the line of the Oise and is already across the river at two or three points. In any case the German columns and long trains of convoys with munitions and supplies will be under an enfilading fire of Mangin's guns along the Oise, as they fall back toward Saint Quentin.

These obviously abundant reasons explain why Ludendorff is hesitating to give an order for a general retreat. The Germans on the Somme-Oise front are now, to put it in a nutshell, between the devil and the deep sea, which is exactly where Foch has been manoeuvring to get them. Whether they decide to continue fighting on the present positions or to fall back behind the Somme, the result will be the same so far as can be seen from present indications.

It must not be overlooked, however, that von Boehm is by far the greatest German specialist in conducting retreats from apparently hopeless situations, as he has more than once proved. The situation at this moment is magnificently favorable for the Allies, but the enemy's strength of resistance is as yet by no means exhausted, and it is fully realized here that there is still much hard fighting to be done.

The feeling is steadily growing here, however, that the Allies must be satisfied with nothing short of decisive defeat of and unconditional capitulation by Germany. All probability of peace by negotiation is fading steadily away. That kind of peace, as Paris sees it, would mean a German peace. The only peace acceptable here would be the peace of the Allies. At present, to every German suggestion to make it up and be friends, France has only one reply:

"Thanks, but we prefer you as kamerads—at the rate of 100,000 per battle."

Colonel Woodward Promoted.

CAMP UPTON, Aug. 27.—Colonel John E. Woodward, camp commander, was commissioned a Brigadier General today. He has been in command here since Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell left to succeed Brig. Gen. ALLIED CHANCES IN SIBERIAN CHAOS

CZECHS' PRECARIOUS STATE

Main Body Six Days by Rail Away from Succor, with Hostile Forces Closing In.

The chaos reigning throughout Siberia, a territory greater in extent of mileage than the United States, but peopled by less than 6,000,000 Russians, is such that a very small allied army can take control and organize the country for the benefit of the people. On the other hand, if the Allies fail to act decisively and speedily, control can be accomplished by 40,000 Germans, who need not be first line troops.

These are the opinions of a man who has spent a year in the revolutions and counter-revolutions that have wrecked the cities and towns that stud the Trans-Siberian and the newly completed Amur River Railway. The traveler quoted has just arrived in New York, but prefers not to be identified because of the nature of the enterprise upon which he was engaged and may again have to undertake.

He left the United States a little over a year ago on what might be called a semi-official mission, proceeded across the Pacific to Japan, thence to Vladivostok, and from there across Siberia to Moscow, where he arrived in November, 1917, and witnessed the events of the revolution in that city. There he received orders to retrace his journey back to the heart of Siberia, where the camps of Austrian and German prisoners were located. He went east again on the first train that took the Bolsheviki agents on their terrible "red" mission. From town to town the train traveled, with the Bolsheviki proclaiming "the revolution" as they went. Some of the larger towns anticipated the coming of the men from Moscow, and murder, arson, and plunder had begun before the train arrived. The traveler (who is a native of one of the neutral countries, though employed in an American service) brought back photographs of the scenes, some of them too gruesome for publication.

"The rejoicing at the overthrow of autocracy," he said yesterday, "lasted but a very few months. Early in the year the sober and honest elements of the people begon to discover that the so-called Socialists were in reality I. W. W.'s. Soon after the revolution took place the better characters among the Russian soldiers left the ranks of the armies and returned to their towns, villages, and farms, and only the self-seeking, marauding elements remained in the Bolshevik Red Guards. Their officers having escaped or been slain, discipline ceased to exist among them.

"That is the reason the comparatively small detachments of Czechoslovaks were able to hold their own against the 'reds.' It is the German, Austrian, and Hungarian soldiers among the Bolsheviki that now lead them and form the controlling factors.

Factions of Released Prisoners.

"There are three definite and distinct factors among the released prisoners, and then there is a fourth, formed of loyal Russians.

"When the Bolsheviki threw open the doors of the prison camps and offered arms to the German and Austro-Hungarian soldiers they found the Czechoslovaks already partly organized and partly equipped, ready to assist their fellow Slavs, the Russians, to fight against the Central Powers. They found a second group of prisoners who, morally wrecked, were anxious to join them in murder, rape, and plunder. This second group was the criminal element of the Germanic armies, but the Bolsheviki also attracted many other Germans because their outlawry offered liberation from the confinement, monotony, and severity of prison life in Siberia.

"It was the spirit of Bolshevism to proclaim the international social order, and the Germans and Austro-Hungarians took up the cry of internationalism and declared their intention to carry the creed back to Austria-Hungary and Germany. But few are going back. Some have married Russian women. Most, however, are mere freebooters.

"The third element among the prisoners, a very large number, are those who are still loyal to the Central Powers, and these men form a definite class who hope for eventual repatriation or the coming of the Germans.

"The condition is such that if the allied and American troops would enter quickly even the Bolshevist elements would, I have no doubt, rally to their cause and serve under them. They are soldiers of fortune.

"Where Are the Allies?"

"The people as a whole have been asking for many months, 'When are the Allies coming?' Finally they began to ask why the Japanese did not come alone.

"There is no intense race prejudice among the Russians such as exists in the United States against people of other colors. The Siberian people would welcome any invaders from the Allies' side who would restore law and order. To them the present condition is intolerable. The life of man, woman, and child is unprotected.

"The Czechoslovaks did not at first clash with the Bolshevist-Teuton detachments, but the conflict had to come, for the former are fighting for nationalism, hoping to deliver their people from the oppression of Austria-Hungary, knowing that if the Central Powers win the plight of their race will be more serious than it has ever been before, and that their own lives are doomed if they do not escape the clutches of Teuton armies.

"The Czechoslovaks in Siberia are divided into two forces by a vast stretch of territory, a six days' journey by rail apart. A group of some 15,000 is more or less safe with its base at Vladivostok, with allied contingents supporting it and allied warships behind. But those who are cut off in West Siberia and scattered along the railway from Lake Baikal to the Ural Mountains, having a limited supply of ammunition, may be in a very sad plight and may never escape.

"They may cross the desert of Gobi, traversing Mongolia and proceeding down into China, but this is a long journey, perilous because of the lack of supplies; or they may fight their way through the Bolshevist-Teuton forces form a junction with the old loyalist Russian leader, Semenoff, whose rear is protected by the Japanese forces in Western Manchuria.

"Their position is precarious in any event. They have better organization than their immediate enemies, but they are probably outnumbered."

DISARM FRENCH SUSPICION.

Doughboys' Frolics with Children Offset German Agents' Lies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The frolicking of American soldiers playing hide-and-seek or baseball with small French boys in village streets is of real military value in the winning of the war. Thousands of American soldiers are doing just that thing with thousands of French children. The value of this has been explained to me by a Frenchman whose work concerns German efforts at propaganda.

"For a long time," he said, "such defeatist agents of the enemy as were in France harped on the sneer that the American expedition would never amount to anything. They tried thereby to destroy the hope of the French people in help from the United States.

"When that failed because of the actual coming of hundreds of thousands of Americans and their splendid fighting, the agents changed their methods. They tried to sow discontent and suspicion by dropping remarks here and there that the Americans had come to get jobs away from the French after the war and to annoy French wives whose husbands were at the front. This lie has proved as ineffective as was the sneer that the American expedition would not amount to anything.

"The best of it in the minds of the French is in the average American soldier's love of children. The friendliness of these big fellows in khaki playing with youngsters wherever they are quartered at the front and teaching boys baseball is one of the most reassuring things the American soldiers have brought here."

form a stream of troops behind which we can work out our own salvation."

He added that he would soon issue an order mobilizing a new national army and restoring compulsory military service.

TOKIO, Aug. 21, (Associated Press.)—Premier Terauchi, in a statement issued today, declared that it was the duty of Japan to supply goods unselfishly and to give assistance to the Russian people in co-operation with the United States, Great Britain, and France.

Baron Tanstaro Megata, former head of the Japanese Economic Commission to the United States, has been appointed director of the Japanese Economic Commission to Siberia.

There will be sixteen other members of the commission, representing the army and navy, the Foreign Office, and shipping, banking, mining, and commercial interests. The Foreign Minister, in addressing the delegation today, said that Japan's policy was to save Siberia first to form a nucleus for saving Russia.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 27.—A dispatch from Kiev to the Rhenish Westphalian Gazette, of Essen, quotes the Russian newspaper Robitnuoza Gazeta as saying the Ukrainian Consul-General at Omsk, Siberia, has announced that mobilization in Siberia does not affect Ukrainians owing to the neutrality of the Ukraine. American, Swedish, and Danish representatives, the dispatch adds, thereupon recognized Ukraine neutrality. The French and British representatives abstained from giving their recognition.

DEPICTS RUSSIA AS HATING GERMANS

Hangings, Assassinations, and Revolts Still the Conditions There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Arthur Ransome, who records events in Russia from the Bolshevist point of view, telegraphs to The London Daily News from Stockholm under date of Sunday:

"On Aug. 10 Boris Donskoi, assassin of the German Field Marshal von Eichhorn, was sentenced and hanged. The execution was carried out on a public gallows erected in Lukianovskaya Square, which was guarded by German infantry and artillery. Donskoi, who was brought under strong convoy, behaved with firmness. He refused to be bound or blindfolded. The Germans took photographs of the execution. I have seen picture postcards issued by the Germans illustrating the hanging of Hungarian and Austrian prisoners captured by them after fighting in the Soviet Army [against the Germans.]

"These methods are not availing to check the revolutionary movement in the Ukraine. It is reported in the Petrograd Pravda that a peasant army of nearly 40,000 is fighting combined German and Ukrainian national troops near the Skvira Railway. The strike continues.

"A Russian bourgeois, returned from Kiev, reports that Bolshevism is growing. The moment the German troops leave any district the workmen leave the factories, and railways are damaged by the peasants, who organize resistance. He laments the unfortunate fate of the Ukrainian bourgeoisie, who, he says, are between the frying pan and the fire, since they resent the assumption of all authority by the Germans, and know if the Germans go they will immediately be replaced by the Soviets.

"He says both the bourgeoisie and the population generally favor a reunion with Russia, of course under different conditions. Separatism has practically disappeared, except among the Galicians visiting Kiev. The Germans only succeeded in getting one-eighth of the corn promised by the Brest-Litovsk peace. On the other hand, the Germans have been unable to supply the Ukraine with the manufactures most needed, and the Ukraine has agreed to supply Russia with sugar. An arrangement is being made whereby the Ukraine is to give Russia 6,000,000 to 9,000,000 pounds of flour in exchange for textiles.

"In White Russia conditions are like those in the Ukraine. The police land guards appointed are the old well-hated officials of the régime of the Czars. The feeling of the people is so bitter that many of the police bolted, fearing an immediate rising and not trusting the Germans to keep sufficient force to defend them, all young soldiers having been taken for the western front. In Livonia, the German chief local authority, von Zelbush, was wounded by several shots at Renneburg, near Wenden. He has since died. The murderer escaped, and the Germans fined the district 50,000 marks.

"These conditions are reflected in recurrent disorders among the German soldiers in the occupied provinces. Thus recently a division of Kherson refused to obey orders, and a regiment at Borisovo killed two of its officers and wounded others before the mutiny was suppressed by fresh troops."

URGES REVISION OF TREATY.

Bernhard Says Germany Must Make Alliance with Russia.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 27, (Associated Press.)—Revision of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty which shall secure for Germany an alliance with Russia and the Asiatic block attached to Russia, is advocated by George Bernhard, political writer in the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin. After declaring that all the German offers of peace have been rejected by Great Britain, the writer says:

"Their acceptance can be counted on only if England's position on the political chessboard is rendered such that there is no course for her but that of acceptance. The vital idea of the new German policy must hence be directed toward the creation of a group of powers which will have a word to say concerning English efforts either to carry on the war or at the peace conference, or, at least, in the matter of conducting economic warfare. No German longer denies that the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty is the chief obstacle to the formation of such a group."

Bernhard admits that the treaty cannot be annulled, but he lays stress on the view recently outlined by Dr. Solf, the German Minister for Colonies, that the treaty is only a frame to be filled out in the future.

LIEUT. QUINCY SHARPE MILLS, who was a New York reporter when he went to the first Plattsburg Camp, has been reported missing in action. WANT CAILLAUX HELD AS POLITICAL PRISONER

Friends Try to Lessen His Discomfort, but He Refuses to Ask Favors.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Friends of Joseph Caillaux are making strong efforts to induce the French Government to render more comfortable his stay in the Sante Prison while he is awaiting trial. For the last month the ex-Premier has had to submit to the régime of ordinary offenders awaiting trial, and it is alleged that he is suffering from arterio-sclerosis, the gravity of which has been much increased by the lack of fresh air and exercise.

Efforts are being made to transfer him to the category of political prisoners, which would entitle him to spend several hours a day in the prison garden. At present he is limited to an hour's exercise daily in the prison yard.

The accused politician has been visited by his own physician, Dr. Socquet, who is understood to have expressed the opinion that his condition was such that he was in great need of special treatment.

Caillaux has consistently refused to ask from the Government the favor of being treated during his preliminary confinement as a political prisoner. The Department of Military Justice, in response to the steps taken by his friends, hesitates to come to any decision of the kind asked for on the ground that such action might be construed as indicating that in its opinion he ought to be regarded as a political prisoner, and not as a man who should be tried as a traitor to his country.

Sympathetic references to Malvy and Caillaux which have recently appeared in the German press have been noted here with interest. The fact that in the enemy press the names of Malvy, who has been sentenced to five years' banishment for betrayal of his duty to his country as a Minister; Caillaux, who is awaiting trial on grave charges of conveying intelligence to the enemy, and the editor of the London pacifist journal, The Daily News, are bracketed together as friends of Germany is regarded here as amply justifying the step which the authorities took in bringing Malvy to trial and arresting Caillaux.

The hero of this romance is Lieutenant Wrexham of the Irish Guards. Invalided to America, he met the charming Molly in this little Southern community where the story is placed. This love-affair between an American Southern girl and the handsome, irresponsible young officer, who makes it a point of honor to announce that he is "not a marrying man," is cleverly woven with another and less violent affair to form a novel of constant and contrasted incident and mood which charms and touches the reader. $1.50 net.

HOPWOOD WRITES A HIGH MORAL FARCE

"A PLAY OF PERSONALITIES"

An Able Cast, with Janet Beecher, Make the Most of Rather Pointless Material.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE, a farce in three acts, by Avery Hopwood. At the Bijou Theatre.

Tommy Campbell	John Westley
Lecksy Campbell	Francine Larrimore
Sybil Norton	Janet Beecher
Jimmie Norton	John Cumberland
Baba Mahrati	J. Harry Irvine
Maggie	Grace Hayle
William	William Postance
Officer O'Brien	Dan Moyles

At the outset of the new play by Avery Hopwood, the Yogi from India, who has become a permanent property in our national drama, demonstrates an ability to read the minds of the dramatis personae. As the play is a farce of the kind long familiar, the outlook was not unpromising. It might at last be established that they have minds to read. One was quite prepared for a riot of new sensation in some ultra-violet color scheme, faintly bizarre—ready and set for an excursion of adventure into the fourth dimension. But it was a false lead. All that Yogi did was to wish the minds of two husbands into each other's body. The bodies remained quite the same, and also (alas!) the minds.

Before the advent of the Yogi these husbands, in the true manner of farce, had had a roving eye, each for the other's wife. So their eyes, (and whatever mind they may have been possessed of,) became domiciled, so to speak, each in the other's apartment—in the apartment, that is, of the alluring fair one. So we had the situation of a man making love—in fact, of two men making love—to discontented wives under all the most propitious circumstances. All, that is, with a single exception. Each was possessed of his own roving eye and astral body, to be sure; but each was heavily handicapped by the too, too solid flesh of the fair one's husband. That idea also promised well. How to charm a wife soulfully, astrally, from behind the glassy eye or the foppish mustache of husband! It is a question as yet unanswered. There must be something feeble in astral bodies—anaemic and predestined to futility. The riot of color sensations in the ultra violet did not materialize; the fourth dimension proved the same old stage of slamming doors that lead nowhere, of the safest of all situations pretending to be risqué.

The pretended farce was, in effect, a document in high morality. Love, which is said to laugh at locksmiths, became subdued and humbled. The dominant passion of each wanderer from the conjugal fold proved to be only for his own particular body, and incidentally for his wife, whether particular or not—they were of both kinds. And besides, the whole thing proved to be, not a real experience, but only a dream, suggested by that very holy man, the Yogi. It was all as admirable as you like—only in farce, somehow, you don't like it.

It was, however, only the central situation that went wrong. Many of the details of characterization, and many a wayward quip, showed the hand that penned "Fair and Warmer." In the earlier part of the play especially, the audience gave itself over to the spirit of mirth and mockery with a free heart. A part of this incidentally happy effect, to be sure, was due to the four very able actors who carried the burden of the performance. Janet Beecher and Francine Larrimore, John Westley and John Cumberland need no bush in this metropolis. If a line embodies a laugh, or even evokes its astral body, they do not let it get by. But the things which "Double Exposure" chiefly revealed were the absence of mind in the dramatis personae of farce, and in Mr. Hopwood when he materialized this one.

TO LECTURE AT CORNELL.

Baron Benson Will Conduct Course on British Empire.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The Jacob H. Schiff endowment of $100,000, which since its inauguration at Cornell University in 1912, has been used for the promotion of German interests, will be devoted during the coming collegiate year to the British Empire and its contribution to the civilization of the world. This decision was reached by the Trustees on the recommendation of Mr. Schiff, it was announced tonight.

Baron Godfrey Rathbone Benson of England has been named lecturer for the course, and will begin a series of lectures in October. He is a noted British scholar and the author of a life of Abraham Lincoln.

WANT PEACE LEAGUE IN LATIN AMERICA

Nations to the South Emphasize Accord at a Dinner Given by Dr. Brum.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Pan-American solidarity was emphasized and cemented tonight at a dinner given by Dr. Baltasar Brum, Foreign Minister of Uruguay, in return for the courtesies extended to him by Secretary of State Lansing and other American officials during his visit to Washington on an important special mission.

The dinner, which was held at the Pan-American Union Building, was attended by the members of the Latin-American diplomatic corps, other diplomats, military and naval men, and others.

Dr. Brum, in a striking address, asserted that the idea of a society of nations would no longer meet insurmountable resistance on the American continent, pointed to the settlement of international controversies in South America by arbitration, and said that, while on his way to this country he had signed at Rio Janeiro a treaty providing for the settlement of the debt which Uruguay owed to Brazil.

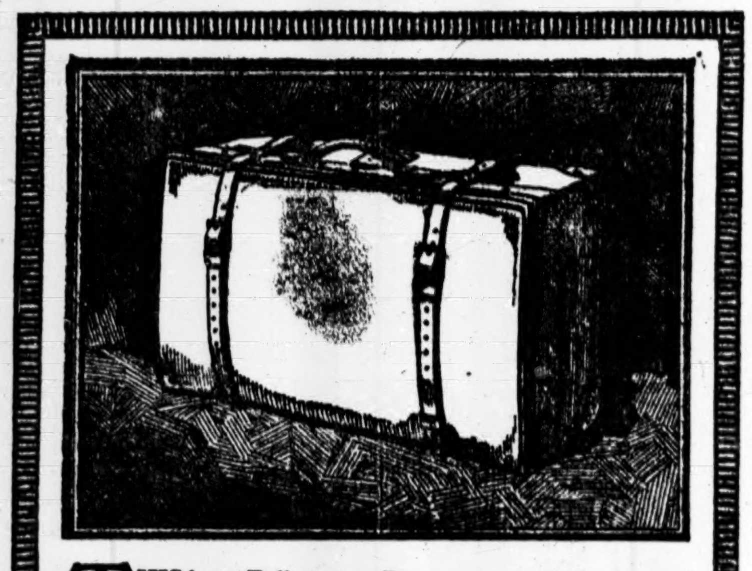
Secretary Lansing reciprocated the sentiments voiced by Dr. Brum, pointing out that in the present world war North and South America had found strength and had come to a better understanding and appreciation of one another's motives.

MEYER LONDON FOR PEACE.

Doesn't Subscribe to the Sentiment "My Country, Right or Wrong."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Speaking in the House today in favor of naming a committee to study the aims of the International League to Secure Peace, Representative Meyer London of New York, Socialist, said:

"I do not believe in the sentiment 'My country right or wrong.'"



THIS large Bellows-top Portmanteau will be favored by those who are avoiding the discomforts of rail road war-time trunk service.

The leather is specially selected and extra heavy cow hide. Oak tanned, and free from acid.

The frame is of square steel rods and heavy steel bands, welded, riveted and reinforced with stiff basswood.

The hand stitching is exceedingly close, with unusually heavy pure linen thread, hand waxed. The solid leather corner caps are brass-riveted, through copper washers. The large, easy handle is padded with cow hide. The locks are of solid brass, brass-riveted, and hold the case tightly closed. The handle loops are of solid brass. The straps are 1¼ inches wide, of harness leather.

This case is worthy of bearing the two marks we have placed upon it—our trademark and our name.

LABOR PLEDGED TO VICTORY

State Federation Opens Convention with War Resolution.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 27.—With every delegate carrying a small American flag, a band playing patriotic airs, and the hall decorated with the flags of the Allies, the State Federation of Labor opened its fifty-fifth annual convention here today. One of the first acts of President James P. Holland was to call for the reading of a resolution adopted yesterday by the Executive Board, declaring that the first business of the convention was to devote itself to the winning of the war. It was greeted with cheers and adopted unanimously. Copies will be sent to President Wilson, General Pershing, and Admiral Sims.

SAY STRIKE IS A FAILURE.

Third Avenue Officials Report Service 85% of Normal.

Service that approached normal was maintained on all the lines of the Third Avenue Railway system yesterday, the only noted tardiness occurring on the Third Avenue line itself. Officials of the company called the strike a failure, stating that 85 per cent. of the normal service had been maintained on all lines of the company by shifting loyal conductors and motormen from the Union Railways Company to the affected lines below the Harlem River. Efforts on the part of the Manhattan strikers to enlist the sympathy of the men on other divisions had been fruitless, the company officials contended.

LINOLEUM VARNISH

Made to Walk On

Make your Linoleum Practically Indestructible By Coating it With

Linoleum Varnish

Linoleums Rot When—

the linoleum oils with which they are infused dry out.—When dry the linoleum is allowed to go unbound.—When linoleum is without a binding surface, the constant foot wear breaks and cracks it.—When linoleum is cracked the waters and ordinary refuse on the floor are absorbed into the fabric and there shorten the life of the linoleum incalculably, by rot.

The Proper Process

to pursue in laying linoleum is, after it is cut, to allow it to "lay" long enough to enable the oils to come to the surface in the ordinary process of cleaning the floor; and to let the fabric dry against possible "buckling." When down about two weeks the linoleum may be tacked. In about three to four weeks apply the varnish, which dries over night. Pt. 64c; Qt. $1.19; Gal. $4.44.

WHAT THE COUNTRY EXPECTS OF MR. RYAN.

The appointment of Mr. John D. Ryan as an Assistant Secretary of War, with the understanding that he is to have full charge of the aircraft program, is a step in the right direction at least. It is not an ideal arrangement, and time alone will show whether it is a solution of a vexed problem. An air department, with an executive like Mr. Ryan at the head of it and invested with independent authority to carry out his plans, was urged by those who had made a study of that problem. The British had made a great success of such a creation after much experimenting with ways and means, and it seemed to be the part of wisdom to follow their example.

We assume that Mr. Ryan, who is a man of energy and not afraid to take responsibility, will have a free hand. His appointment is an admission that the old reorganization, made in response to justifiable criticism, was a failure. It had been intimated that in place of an air ministry or department a new Assistant Secretary of War would be named to take over aviation. Mr. Ryan is an excellent appointment. He has already familiarized himself with the details and difficulties of aircraft production, and he will enter upon his new duties with a flying start. The pace must be swift if he is to win the race against time. No man is better qualified to make the attempt. Everybody employed in the existing organization will wish him success, and the country expects it of him.

The law affecting aircraft production as a War Department industry has not been changed by Mr. Ryan's appointment. He may find himself impeded by "red tape," and lack of co-operation may thwart him and chill his zeal, but public opinion demands that he be not interfered with or embarrassed in the execution of his trust. He will have the powerful support of the President, who is personally concerned in Mr. Ryan's success, since Mr. Wilson has steadily declined to countenance an air department. Perhaps he has been right. It remains to be seen.

Mr. Ryan's personality will count for much. He is a man of ideas, and as an organizer and executive he has no superiors. We believe there will be a marked speeding up in aircraft building, under his eye and hand, as there has been in the case of shipbuilding since Mr. Schwab took the helm. The country will not concern itself about the unrealized promises of the past, the cross purposes, the omissions, the crudities, the blunders in policy and execution. It is looking to the future, and, knowing that a fair start has been made in the production of airplanes, it confidently expects Mr. Ryan to make a record in performance.

BACKSLIDING DRYS.

What fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? Sadly must that text be given for reproof to Morris Sheppard, chieftain of the Senate Drys, and to all his brethren in Dryness. By the Jones amendment to the Food Stimulation bill prohibition is to begin on Jan. 1, 1919, and continue during the war. This would throw away millions of Federal revenue, knock in the head important businesses, cause severe financial losses. It would be a sudden and an immense spoliation. It would rob the Government of great taxes sorely needed. It would empty a lot of private purses.

What of it? Right is right. There can be no compromise or dickering on a high moral question. Ethics can't be sacrificed to the pocketbook. Then off with his head. So much for Alcohol.

Instead, the children of light, colloguing with the children of darkness, have agreed to change the date when the Jones amendment is to take effect, from Jan. 1, 1919, to July 1, 1919; and the Wets, and the men who believe in keeping an easy means of raising revenue toward carrying on the war, hope that the date can be postponed till July 1, 1920.

The Government needs all the money it can get; but why should the Drys worry about that? Prohibition is more than revenue. Shall the Dry Ark be rented to a gin mill? "Pulverize the Rum Power!" Then bleed the North for the taxes of substitution.

Who can comprehend how the Drys can yield even temporarily on the most protuberant and heaven-grazing moral question now before the world? Equally, who can comprehend how the Administration or sensible men in Congress can consent to throw away, after a little time, an enormous revenue?

AMBASSADOR PAGE.

There will be universal and sincere regret in this country that Ambassador Page has found it necessary because of ill-health to tender his resignation to the President. He has had to bear the burden of unusual and great labors during the four years of the war; it is evident that he finds it necessary to seek relief from the exacting duties of that important office.

Mr. Page has well and worthily represented his Government at the Court of St. James's. The duties of his Ambassadorial office, which are almost infinite in number and variety, he has performed with such unfailing tact that the voice of criticism, if it has been anywhere raised, has been inaudible. The Government to which he was accredited and the British people have given him a continuing welcome as an acceptable representative of this nation. Mr. Page has filled a post of unusual honor, but of unusual responsibility. The two nations are bound together as never before. Their soldiers are fighting shoulder to shoulder; ties of common interest and common devotion make them brothers in a great cause. The Ambassador has been called upon to represent not alone the policies of his Government, but the sentiments of the American people, and that he has done upon innumerable occasions of ceremony where warmth of sentiment took the place of the customary reserve of diplomacy.

Ambassador Page has been a good adviser of his own Government. He has kept it informed of the policies and the motives of policy of the allied nations, and he has labored, within the bounds permitted to an Ambassador, to bring the policies of our Government and its partners in the war into unison. Even before he has entirely laid aside the cares and duties of his post speculation will be rife as to his successor. It is to be hoped and it may be expected that an American as thoroughly American as Mr. Page, as able and broad-minded, as discreet and tactful, may be appointed to the vacancy the acceptance of his resignation creates.

HURRY THE WAR REVENUE BILL.

Secretary McAdoo and Chairman Kitchin may never surrender to each other, but there are ways and reasons for settling their dispute for them. That is the meaning of the taking of their contention to the President, and therein lies the hope of passing the War Revenue bill before the Fourth Liberty Loan or the elections. The prospect of that would be improved if the Senate committee would confer with the House committee before the bill is passed rather than afterward. No doubt the usual formal conference upon any disagreement between the houses would still be necessary, for no committee could bind either house. But an agreement of their respective committees upon a bill generally approved by the country, and indorsed by the President, would shorten the period which threatens the success of the Liberty Loan by not letting would-be subscribers know how much money the tax gatherer will leave them.

These are not the Chairman's views. He thinks that there has been so much delay that more makes little difference, and instead of hastening progress he would delay it. That might be excusable if delay meant a better bill instead of the political convenience of Congressmen. But the delay which lies behind has not improved the bill so much as it has emphasized the difference in points of view between the Chairman and the Secretary. Mr. Kitchin retains all his dislike of profits above the scale which seems to him normal in peace or war. He would tax excess profits alike at all times, and is not disconcerted by the disclosure of the tax returns showing that the largest profits, upon his standard return upon invested capital, were made by smallest concerns. Practically all makers of 100 per cent. profit and upward to thousands per cent. were small corporations. An excess profits tax which stops at 70 per cent. upon "invested capital" is neither cure nor punishment for such excess profits, which are not made every year. They are incidental to war, and were made in many cases without unusual effort and in businesses under control of the Government regarding both conduct and prices. These are the profiteers whom the Secretary wishes to make share their good fortune with the Government.

He would take 80 per cent. of their profits, regardless of rate of return upon invested capital. The Chairman wishes to reduce profits. The Secretary wishes to increase revenues. Delay is not necessary to make a decision between these two chief points of difference. Either the President or the Senate could make up the Chairman's mind for him forthwith if he would allow discretion to be the better part of his valor. The present excess profits tax is forgiven him, and even renewed to save his face. Therewith he should be content, and not make wartime necessities the excuse for pressing his views of social reform and permissible profits beyond the point which would be possible in peace.

Possibly the next important point of difference between the Secretary and the Chairman is that regarding the distinction between earned and unearned income and the rates on each. The Secretary wishes a higher rate than the Chairman, but both wish the rate to be high enough to promote the sale of tax-exempt bonds. The Treasury has competition in that class of security issue, and there is now proposed a discrimination against the rival local issues. They have been regarded as beyond Federal taxation, but the pending bill does not regard them as beyond exclusion from the class of "admissible assets" which are free of normal tax as invested capital. If such securities are totally exempt from Federal tax, as some argue, it is clear that investments in them might be carried to the point of defeating the Federal tax. But if they may be discriminated against by Federal tax layers in any degree, it is difficult to say where the line shall be drawn. Even those who think that local securities may not be taxed have come to see that local officeholders may be taxed as well as Federal. Both securities and officeholders are instrumentalities of government, and if one may be taxed so may the other. The argument that the power to tax is the power to destroy, and that it is the beginning of the end of Federal government if the central government may tax the local governments, is equally applicable to official salaries and incomes from local securities. In either case, the argument may be pressed to the point of answering itself. In time of urgency like war, considerations of pressing need are more convincing than arguments fitter for peace and forensic disputation.

FEDERAL PAPER-EATERS.

That fat old humbug, ironically called the Congressional Record, though it is a miscellany ragbag and universal scrapbook rather than a record of what is said and done by Congress, has just been hauled over the coals again. It pretended to reform a little six months ago, but is on the spree again. The custom of "extending" a member's remarks was attacked in the House by Mr. Walsh of Massachusetts, a persistent foe of "extension." He cited the case of Mr. Blanton of Texas, who had "extended" a speech with five pages of full accounts of the primaries in Comanche County and Lone Star way stations.

Mr. Treadway of Massachusetts had had "extended his remarks" by eight pages of extracts from his own speeches in the second session of this Congress. Mr. Treadway knows that a good thing can't be said too often, but, really, when paper is short and Congressional eloquence so long, oughtn't a member to be satisfied with one appearance of his speech? Suppose Mr. La Follette should adopt the custom of reprinting some of his little cursory two-week talks. Not all the paper in the world, if all the world were paper, could reprint "extended" Mr. La Follette.

Representative Barnhart, Chairman of the House Committee on Printing, said that Mr. Treadway's encore cost the Government $300. He thought it the Speaker's and every member's duty "to see to it that every time "a member asks to have his remarks "extended he state what he is going "to print in the extension." This is mere kindly milk-and-water poured on an inveterate and inexcusable abuse. Abolish the privilege of "extension." Keep out of the Congressional Record all extraneous and irrelevant matter. Make it a record, an honest record. Make it cease to be a padded, swollen lie.

Irrespective of the scarcity of paper, this Congressional Record ought to be thinned. A year or two ago a speech of Mr. Hughes's was actually reprinted twice in the same number.

Yet why insist too much on the sins of this Falstaffian sinner? The Government is the most voracious paper-eater in existence. In the debate in the House, the Official Bulletin, most of whose circulation is unpaid, forced, wasted, was mentioned as a costly and superfluous paper consumer. Couldn't a good deal of paper be saved by its suppression? asked Mr. Clark of Florida. Mr. Barnhart referred to "the widespread opinion" that "if the information given out in the Official Bulletin could be given to the newspapers of the country it would be "much more generally read than it "is in the Official Bulletin." No doubt, if the newspapers would print that "information," so seldom informing.

But whatever be thought of the mostly unread and obscure Federal announcer, it is but a drop in the multitudinous seas of Government printing ink. Estimates of the departments call for more than 90,000,000 pounds of paper for Government use; paper of all sorts, but, wherever there is an opportunity, the Government uses the costliest, and as much of it as possible. It is the good old bureaucratic habit, and the horde of zealous amateurs adopt it with love. Washington swarms with stationery-swallowers, complete letter-writers, information bureaus and press agents innumerable. They mean well, but how they make the paper fly! If the Government swallows 1 per cent. of the whole American paper output, is it quite as much of a paper conservator as it insists, and rightly, that a mere newspaper shall be?

A WAR BRIDE FROM LUXEMBURG.

The latest victim of Cupid's darts is that war-worn veteran, Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, who amid the preoccupation entailed by a series of victorious retreats has found time to become engaged to Princess Antoinette of Luxemburg. Despite the disparity in ages—Rupprecht is 49 and his fiancée 19—the match will no doubt be a happy one. Rupprecht crownprinces rather better than his distinguished rival Wilhelm of Prussia, and if he has never displayed an inclination toward Wilhelm's habit of stealing clocks and silverware from châteaux where he is quartered, his bride will nevertheless find a well-furnished home. Rupprecht's throne, moreover, is likely to be more secure than Wilhelm's when the German people have leisure to sit down and figure up whether the war was worth what it cost.

Without doubt here is a royal instance of the phenomenon so often seen in humbler circles—a gentleman consoling himself with the younger sister when the elder will have none of him. For ever since the German Army took forcible possession of Luxemburg, on Aug. 2, 1914, German intrigue has been doing its best to get the young Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide to accept a German husband and facilitate the inclusion of her realm in the German Empire. So far Adelaide has held out, but she has five sisters, and Antoinette, the third of them, has apparently been picked out as the sacrifice. For without doubt German royalties were becoming insistent; even in Germany it begins to be apparent that the good German sword cannot do all the work at the peace conference, and that it is highly advisable to get up some sort of title to the neighboring countries whose inclusion within the German sphere of influence is still hoped for. German Kings are being picked for Lithuania and Finland, and if a good German bridegroom could be admitted to a share of the throne of Luxemburg he might be used as a counterweight to the desires of its people who want the war to restore their independence. If this design is so far unsuccessful, the present match will at any rate mean a closer German connection for the ruling house.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Can We Not Hasten the Mails?

With the purpose of the mission on which Julius Rosenwald was sent to France by Secretary Baker there will be, of course, warm sympathy all over the country. It does not seem likely, indeed, that many of our men abroad can have more than momentary doubt, if that, as to the warmth and depth of the feelings entertained for them by their fellow-citizens at home—as to our willingness and determination, by all possible activities and all necessary sacrifices, to support them in the magnificent work they are doing in the field for us and the other decent parts of the world. But though they know all this, they will none the less like to be told of it by a well-accredited and well-informed authority.

It is a fact, too, that "the boys" will be encouraged and inspirited by the messages which Mr. Rosenwald will carry to them from the high officials of their own States. There is, however, one thing which was not mentioned in the Secretary's letter of instruction—a thing at least as important as any of the things he did mention—and that is the matter of mails to and from the men in France. If Mr. Rosenwald can find out what is the matter with that service—if he can devise a method of improving it, and persuade the Secretary of War or somebody else in high authority at once to adopt and execute a new and prompter transmission of news back and forth between the home folk and their husbands, sons, and brothers "over there"—then will he accomplish for the creation and maintenance of "morale" at both ends of the line as much as does the General who wins a great battle or the statesman who formulates a righteous and efficient policy.

Complaints of the military mail service are innumerable and they are just—not at all the less just because the problem is a difficult one to solve and the excuses for not solving it are many. Particularly trying to the families at home is their inability to get detailed news from the wounded men in whom they are so keenly interested. The mere announcement that a wound has been received is not enough. That only creates cruel anxiety, and yet to get further information is now an almost hopeless task—often an impossible one for the majority of people.

A Serious Medical Controversy.

In one paragraph of the protest sent by the New York Hospital Conference to the Surgeon General there was a hint of the easily understandable irritation and indignation felt by the hospital heads here because of the seemingly almost complete disregard for their interest which the army medical authorities are showing. The complaint is not because more importance is ascribed to caring for soldiers abroad than for civilians at home. Nobody denies the rightness of that. What is denied is that there is any necessity for a nearly complete disruption and destruction of our hospital nursing staffs, and what is asserted is that to do this will result, not in giving the military hospitals the nurses they must have at no matter what inconvenience or hardship here, but in decreasing almost to the vanishing point, before long, the already inadequate supply.

What this will mean in the future, when American casualties abroad approximate or equal those which the British and French have suffered in the battles of the last few weeks, can be imagined, though it is very far from pleasant to do so. All the civilian hospitals ask is that they be permitted to maintain and to increase their efficiency as training schools for nurses and nurses' aids who, when sufficiently instructed, can be turned over to the Army Medical Corps. This they cannot do, their responsible managers declare, if there is insistence on compliance with the Surgeon General's present demand for considerable numbers of their senior and intermediate pupils.

Hence is it, presumably, that the Hospital Council ventured to remind the War Industries Board of its recent decision that the moving picture business is an "essential industry," and to express surprise that "apparently it has not yet occurred to any officer of the Government to bestow equal consideration on the hospitals of the country." Probably it was not judicious to do that, but it was very "human."

What the hospital directors urge is that they be allowed to give a special, intensive training of six months, the products of which can be used in France as aids to regularly trained and graduated nurses, after the plan that has been tried and found good by our allies. That seems to be a more practical method than the taking as nurses of pupils who have had, indeed, training for the same length of time, but had it only as the beginning of a course intended to continue for three or four years.

They Can See Realities Occasionally.

Once in a while, though so rarely, a German paper makes a statement marked by both truth and wisdom—a statement with which people not German, even though they are not pacifists or Socialists, can cordially agree. Usually these gems of thought appear in Maximilian Harden's Zukunft, but now and then a German editor who does not share Harden's somewhat belated, though apparently sincere, realization of the fact that brigandage isn't really any more profitable for a nation than for an individual, glimpses a fact, for a change, and ventures to describe it.

A notable example of this un-Teutonic proceeding is supplied by the Cologne Volkszeitung, which has intermitted its vehement demands for annexations and indemnities long enough to remark:

> Germany is no longer fighting for Belgium or Alsace-Lorraine, but for sheer existence. A great battle is going on. It is a battle on the glacis of the fortress called Germany. We stand alone and have no help to expect from anybody.

If confession, as has been confidently stated, is good for the soul, at least one German editor's soul is—well, isn't in a state quite as bad as it used to be. "A battle on the glacis of the fortress called Germany" is a fine phrase. It has substance in addition to sound.

Hopes for German Democracy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I hope I am not imposing on your patience and good-will in replying again to Professor Scholl's attacks on the attempts that are being made to foster the spreading of democratic ideals in Germany and to drive a wedge between the rulers and the ruled. Professor Scholl does not seem to realize that the main question at issue has long since passed the stage of academic discussion. In every country fighting against Germany large organizations, military and civil, have been created for the very purpose of spreading democratic ideas and true information in Germany, and the American Friends of German Democracy have done and are doing their best to aid in the good work. Its effectiveness has been demonstrated especially during the last few days. Almost daily we have read about the uneasiness created in the minds of the German militarists through the efforts made by the Allies to illuminate the German masses. Continued German disasters in the field will undoubtedly increase the efficacy of this auxiliary method of waging war on the German autocracy.

But it appears from Professor Scholl's letter that "the Kaiser laughs a Mephistophelean laugh at our naiveté." Let him laugh his most devilish laugh. It may do him good. He will not laugh when he hears the end of the joke.

Why should not Americans of German origin help in this good cause? Tens of thousands are doing it with enthusiasm, supported by eminent Americans of older stock too numerous to mention and practically the whole American press. If democratic principles of government and institutions are good enough for the German element in America they cannot be poisonous for the people in Germany. Surely, there ought not to be two points of view on this question among Americans of German origin untainted by German Kultur. Moreover, the organization working for the democratization of Germany, the American Friends of German Democracy, enjoys the warm support of President Wilson. I humbly submit that President Wilson is at least as authoritative an exponent of true American policy as Professor Scholl.

German Colonial Propaganda.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Americans behind the line can perform no more co-operative benefit on their and the allied soldiery than by studying the subject of German propaganda, and especially pertinent is the article in The Times Magazine on Sunday, in which was presented the great German plan of impressing on the German people the importance of regaining the African colonies. The German statesmen, with true disregard of all psychological consequences, have failed evidently to realize the effect on the German and the allied mind of this emphasis on the value to both sides of those ill-colonized tracts across the belt of the African Continent.

The Allies are more determined than ever that this territory shall not be returned to Germany, and more vital still is the boomerang result of Dr. Solf's impassioned plea when the German people digest thoroughly this new diet offered by the German Imperial Government. If the German statesmen persist in pledging their judgment to the absolute necessity of the re-cession of these colonies, they will convince the German people that, since this land is now held by Great Britain, Germany has lost the war.

THE BLESSÈD OF FREEDOM.

Cries a Voice on the wind from over the sea,
Cries a Voice on the wind that speeds out of France:
"Through you and by you the world shall be free,
And Freedom shall render
In fullness her splendor
To your young men, all true men, who came to defend her—
All brave men, all true men, who came, and still coming, in millions advance."

Cries a Voice on the wind, on the sea-coursing wind,
That passes and scatters bright blossoms of foam:
"Mourn not the doom that the faithful shall find;
With envy the story
Shall be heard of the glory
Of your young men who fell on the fields that were gory—
All brave men, all true men, who, fallen, now blest of high Freedom find home."

WILLIAM ADAMS SLADE.

AMBASSADOR PAGE QUITS LONDON POST

American Envoy Forced to Resign Because of Illness Due to Overwork.

TO RETURN HOME SOON

President Wilson Accepts the Resignation, but Has Not Yet Announced a Successor.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador to Great Britain, has resigned on account of ill-health, according to an announcement made here today.

The Ambassador has been in poor health for some months, owing to the long strain of war work. He took a vacation of two months early in the Summer and then returned to London for a short time. He was unable, however, to keep engagements for public appearances and was again compelled to go to the country. He and Mrs. Page will soon return to America.

Mr. Page's physician decided that the Ambassador must take a long period of complete rest, hence Mr. Page sent his resignation to President Wilson, who accepted it.

Mr. Page has borne a heavy burden of the work of the embassy during the war, and particularly since the United States entered the war. The Ambassador recently has been in great demand as a public speaker. While he came to London without a reputation as a public man, Mr. Page has grown steadily in popularity, particularly with the American colony, because of his democratic American ways and his approachableness. In one of his last speeches Mr. Page said:

"I cannot imagine a more pleasant position than to be an American in England in these days."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The London report that Walter Hines Page, Ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, had resigned because of ill-health was confirmed here today.

The fact that the resignation had been accepted became known unofficially after the news that it had been tendered had come in an Associated Press dispatch.

Officials would not discuss Mr. Page's probable successor in the absence of a formal announcement of his retirement.

Walter Hines Page has been the representative of the United States at London since April 21, 1913. Before his appointment he was editor of the World's Work and a member of the publishing firm of Doubleday, Page & Co.

In March, 1914, he attracted considerable attention by remarks that he made at a dinner in referring to the Monroe Doctrine and the Panama Canal. This address, which was made as a complement to President Wilson's speech on Central American relations, caused considerable discussion, but it was indorsed by the President after Mr. Page had cabled its full text to Washington.

During the days when American troops were at Vera Cruz and were operating across the Mexican border Mr. Page had a difficult rôle to play, but his work resulted in a perfect understanding between America and Great Britain on the situation in Mexico.

During the period before the United States entered the war the American Embassy at London was one of the busiest spots in England. Many thousands of Americans who were abroad when the war demoralized travel went to London and there got in touch with their relatives in this country or found means to continue their journeys to the United States.

Since America entered the war Mr. Page has been active in conferences with governmental officials of the Allies, has been at sessions of the Interallied War Council, and has visited a number of the Entente nations on missions of importance.

Late in May it was reported that Mr. Page was ill and was going on a vacation. Where he went was never made public, but on July 18 it was announced that he had resumed his work at London and had fully recovered from his illness.

COL. HARVEY INDICTED.

Editor of North American Review Accused of Libeling New Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas., Aug. 27.—Widespread indignation in New Mexico at the publication of a letter in the August North American Review, said to have borne the name of Henry Wray of Kansas City, which used language reflecting on the people of New Mexico, has culminated in an indictment by the Grand Jury of Socorro County of Colonel George Harvey, editor of the magazine, and Wray, charging criminal libel. The indictment was returned on Aug. 22 and made public this morning.

The contributed article, which has been reprinted by several of the newspapers of New Mexico, pictured the State as a hotbed of treason, pointed to the alleged gateway for a hostile army on the Mexican border between El Paso and Columbus, and alleged that the "Penitenses," an alleged secret organization, was feared by the courts.

Elfego Baca, Socorro attorney, whose name figures in the Wray article, said here today that he intended to sue the North American Review for $250,000. A Socorro County paper said that it was understood there that Harvey would publish a retraction and apology in the next number of the magazine.

County and city committees over the State have telegraphed to him refuting the allegations, and showing that 13,000 New Mexico men are in the army and navy, and that the State is otherwise showing its patriotism.

The report of the indictment of Colonel Harvey was received with surprise yesterday in the office of the North American Review, 171 Madison Avenue, particularly in view of the fact that a telegram of protest sent by Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico was published in the North American Review's War Weekly of Aug. 17. Under the protest was the following apology by the editor: "We agree with Senator Fall that the letter ought not to have been published, and we hasten to tender unqualified apology to New Mexico and everybody in it."

It was explained at the office of the publication that the article causing the protest and indictment was not written by any member of the staff of the publication, but was a letter published in the open forum department. It was also said that Senator Fall's protest was received in the office too late for publication in the September issue of the North American Review, and that the first opportunity to make amends was taken when it was published in the weekly war review. A more extended apology will appear in the October issue, it was added.

NEW GREENBACKS OUT.

One and Two Dollar Bills Put Into Circulation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Two new greenbacks—the first of the nation's wartime currency—are in circulation. They are the $1 and $2 Federal Reserve bank notes planned especially to replace the silver certificates withdrawn from circulation as the Treasury's silver reserve is melted into bullion for export to the Allies.

The one-dollar note bears a portrait of George Washington in the upper left hand corner of the face side, and otherwise resembles generally a Federal Reserve note. On the reverse side is shown in a centre oval an eagle in full flight, typifying the nation mobilized for war.

The two-dollar note is similar, except that it bears a portrait of Thomas Jefferson on the front and a picture of a battleship on the back.

PEACE ONLY BY FORCE.

Hitchcock Believes Only Military Disaster Will Curb Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—This is not the time for talk of peace terms to which Germany must yield, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska told the Senate today. Instead, he declared, Germany must first be beaten into submission.

"Nothing less than a great military disaster will burn into the mind of Germany the lesson she must learn if the world is to be made safe for democracy," said the Nebraska Senator.

He praised the recent speech of Senator Lodge as impressive.

"As to the terms of peace," he said, however, "I do not think the time has arrived to discuss them. For the present I prefer simply to stand with the President in earnest advocacy of 'force, force to the utmost, force without stint or limit,' and to let a discussion of the terms of peace wait till that force has brought the German mind to a condition in which it can see things as the rest of the world does.

"Speaking for myself, I agree with him that we must have a great military triumph for our side as a basis for peace discussion. The power we are fighting is a military power. The system of Germany is essentially military. The German people must become convinced that their system is wrong. They must be shown that the system of military autocracy, built up and developed in fifty years, is a failure. Nothing less than a great military defeat can bring this about. He that lives by the sword shall perish by the sword. They must, as a nation, learn that lesson by experience. Argument will not do. The example of other nations is not enough. Only military disaster will convince them that their system is wrong and their gods false. They must once and for all abandon their idea of conquest. They must cease to sing or think of 'Deutschland über Alles.' They must discover in the midst of military disaster and bankruptcy that their only hope of the future is to live as other nations live.

"When that time comes the German people will be willing to give a guarantee of peace. They will be willing to accept a democratic theory of self-government. They will be willing to agree to the independence of small nations. They will be willing to accept justice in place of force as the international standard, but they will not be ready to do these things and repudiate military autocracy until they have tasted defeat. Nothing but a great military triumph can bring a real and a permanent peace."

WAR RISK BUREAU SWAMPED

Allotment and Insurance Problems Call for More Help.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—At its present rate of growth the War Risk Bureau is apparently destined to become the largest branch of the Federal Civil Service. Over 10,000 persons are employed in it now, and the demand for the addition of clerks increases daily. The bureau has the largest mail of any branch of the Government now.

Over 3,000,000 letters have been received since the enactment of the law providing for allotments and allowances and compensation and insurance for soldiers and sailors and their families and dependents. Over 150,000 letters come in every week.

To help in the stressful situation thus produced twenty-five college professors have given their time during the Summer vacation in helping read these letters, and scores of school teachers have devoted their services to the same task. The Bureau of Efficiency is co-operating with the Treasury Department in trying to handle the correspondence problem.

The Bureau of War Risk Insurance has sent out nearly 5,000,000 allotment and allowance checks to the families of soldiers and sailors, representing an aggregate disbursement of about $140,000,000. Checks are now going forward at the rate of about 1,000,000 a month, which is probably the largest number of checks issued by any single establishment in this world. The bureau has received 3,200,841 allotment and allowance applications. In 1,880,087 of these no dependents were named. More than 1,275,000 allotment and allowance awards have been made.

In addition to the allotment and allowance problem the Bureau of War Risk Insurance handles more than $27,000,000,000 of Government insurance on soldiers and sailors and pays indemnity compensation for deaths and disabilities incurred in line of duty. The insurance is being increased at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a week.

AGREE ON 'BONE-DRY' DATE.

Senate Will Pass Bill for Wartime Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—With a general, informal understanding to provide for nation-wide "bone-dry" prohibition beginning July 1, 1919, and continuing during the war, the Senate tomorrow will resume consideration of the prohibition measure, which has been pending for many months.

Leaders of both "wet" and "dry" factions today announced that sentiment was general in support of the compromise negotiated to postpone the effective date of absolute prohibition from Jan. 1, 1919, as proposed in the pending bill, until July 1 next. Passage of the measure with the compromise included was predicted tomorrow, or Thursday.

Under the compromise arranged, to be formally presented as an amendment by Senator Sheppard, leader of the "dry" forces, manufacture of beer and wines would stop May 1, 1919, instead of Nov. 1, 1918, as provided in the present bill. Production of distilled beverages already has ceased under the food control law.

Wine interests are expected to make a final fight to postpone operation of the measure. At a hearing today before the Senate Agricultural Committee representatives of California grape growers asked for postponement of the prohibition effective date until July 1, 1920.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Chairman of the committee, said the Federal amendment would be ratified by the States by next January or February, to become effective one year after ratification.

$5,000,000 STAMPS SOLD.

Woman Disturbs Thrift Meeting in City Hall Park.

More than $5,000,000 worth of War Savings Stamps were sold up to Monday night in the $25,000,000 thrift drive which the salesmen of the city are conducting this week. According to the announcement made at the headquarters, 1,246 Broadway, yesterday, there is no doubt that the campaign will find the salesmen well over the top on Friday night, when the drive ends.

The meeting at City Hall Park yesterday had a sensational feature not anticipated by the committee. A woman broke through the crowds, shouting "Stop this murder. I insist that you stop selling these stamps. Every stamp means another murder." An angry crowd quickly surrounded the woman and turned her over to Patrolman William O'Connell, who took her to the station and made a charge of disorderly conduct against her.

In the First District Court the woman said she was Anna Carlyn, 39 years old, of 281 Bradford Street, an Austrian by birth. She made disparaging remarks about the President, declared he was "pro-Japanese" and constantly torturing her two sons, 14 and 17 years old. She was held until Thursday for further investigation.

Cyril Maude will be the principal attraction at the Library steps today, supported by the chorus of the Winter Garden. Daredevil Steve Peterson will make his daily climb again, choosing the building at 135 Broadway for the performance.

HOSPITALS OUTLINE PLEA FOR EXEMPTION

Committee Which Will Seek to Prevent Disintegration of Staffs Tells of Plans.

SUGGESTS CHANGE OF LAW

Asserts That Civil Institutions Are Necessary to Maintenance of National Interest.

The Committee of the War Service Hospitals Association, which has been studying plans to prevent the disintegration of civil hospitals by the drafting of essential employes, prepared the following statement yesterday:

"It is desirable that the hospitals be recognized as 'necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment * * * and the maintenance of the national interest during the emergency.' The army is definitely counting upon the completion of the training of pupil nurses now enrolled in civil hospitals in order that they may augment the supply of graduate nurses, and relies to some extent upon the continued output of properly trained internes. It has been recently demonstrated that graduate nurses in sufficient numbers to meet the needs of the army are not and can not be made available even with the assistance of the civil hospitals, and that supplementary courses of shorter duration than the ordinary nursing course will have to be established and maintained in civil hospitals in order that large numbers of women thus trained may be made available as hospital assistants in the army. It seems clear that the civil hospitals are essential from the military point of view. They are clearly necessary to the 'maintenance of the national interest,' meaning thereby the welfare of the nation itself during the war.

Law Strictly Interpreted.

"Last year, prior to the induction of internes and medical students into the army several district boards assumed the responsibility of exempting these groups on occupational grounds. Justice Hughes, who at that time presided over the district board of New York City, held that such action was unauthorized, and was unwilling to approve of anything but a strictly literal interpretation of the law, which declared that 'persons engaged in industries including agriculture' may be excluded or discharged from the selective draft. If, however, for the phrase 'industries including agriculture' there should be substituted in the new man power bill the term 'employment' or 'occupational,' the draft boards would thus acquire the right to exempt indispensable hospital employes in their discretion.

"Under the original selective service law it was found impracticable to arrange for the exemption from military duty of medical students or of hospital internes. The expedient that was finally resorted to was the commissioning of internes as officers of the Medical Reserve Corps and the enrollment in the Enlisted Medical Reserve Corps of undergraduates, thus inducting both groups into the service, but making it possible for the Surgeon General to keep them on the inactive list, or, in other words, to enable them to complete their studies, and in the case of internes, to render a certain amount of service in the hospital. Without any change in the law, similar measures might be taken with regard to necessary medical officers of hospitals other than internes, and perhaps also with regard to orderlies and certain other groups of men who might appropriately be enrolled in the Enlisted Medical Reserve Corps. A wide extension of this principle would place the entire male personnel of civil hospitals in the army technically, and make them available for any service that might be assigned to them by the Surgeon General.

Simplified Organization Asked.

"Whether the solution of the problem be approached through the change in the law suggested in Section 1, or whether it becomes necessary to rely upon the acquiescence of the Surgeon General's office for the continued employment in civil hospitals of medical officers and other indispensable employes, it is highly desirable that an agreement be reached between the Surgeon General's office and the civil hospitals as to the definition of 'indispensability.' The American Hospital Association has suggested that the staff organization of most hospitals should be simplified, and many hospitals are voluntarily adopting such simplification in order to release medical officers for military service. For the guidance of those concerned, however, it is desirable that standards be adopted for hospitals of different types and capacities. In the formulation of such standards representatives of the hospitals of the country should be consulted."

Suggestions in line with those in the statement will be made at Washington by a committee representing the Hospital Conference of New York City.

WAR PLEA FOR SCHOOLS.

Fifteen Needed Here if Government Releases Materials.

Arthur S. Somers, President of the Board of Education, said last night that he expected to be in Washington today to obtain a ruling from the War Industries Board with regard to the release of material for the construction of ten new school buildings, which are urgently needed, and for the finishing of four or five other buildings.

If the War Industries Board releases the necessary construction material the Board of Education will attempt to rush the buildings to completion. The new buildings will take care of 30,000 additional pupils on full time and 60,000 on part time.

President Somers furnished the War Industries Board three weeks ago with a complete inventory of materials needed, the amount of steel, cement, timber, and other articles. He said the authorities were then inclined to request the Board of Education to discontinue construction of new buildings for the period of the war.

"The Appeals Board of the War Industries Board took up the matter," he continued, "and promised to let me know by last Saturday. The time has passed and I am going to Washington to see if we can get an immediate ruling on the matter."

Prompt action has been taken by the Controller and the Board of Estimate on the plans and specifications sent to them by the Board of Education since Aug. 9. All these contracts were approved yesterday, including the new school to be known as 29 at Henry and Baltic Streets, Brooklyn. Plans for the new 57, at Crotona Avenue and 181st Street, the Bronx, are complete, and the contract will be sent to the Board of Estimate for approval at once.

TO TELL OF FOREIGN PAPERS

Deputy Becker to be Witness Before Senate Committee.

Deputy Attorney General Becker will go to Washington on Sept. 4 to testify before a Senate committee regarding a bill to restrict the admission of foreign language newspapers to the mails. The bill was introduced by Senator King of Utah. Mr. Becker said yesterday:

"In general I have acquired a somewhat extensive acquaintance with the methods of German propaganda, and it appears to me that if the sessions of the Senate sub-committee were held in private I might properly appear before the committee to give a general outline of the investigations of this department. It would be better to appear in private session, for some of the matters of the most illuminating character must be kept confidential for the present, owing to pending criminal litigations, and for other reasons."

SUNDAY MOTORING ORDERED STOPPED

Gasoline Conservation Measure Also Extends to Motor Cycles and Motor Boats.

MUST SAVE "GAS" FOR WAR

Order Affects All States East of Mississippi—May Take in the West Later.

ASK VOLUNTARY COMPLIANCE

If Not Obeyed, Regulation Will Be Made Mandatory—Early Relaxation Probable.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The Fuel Administration has called upon the public in States east of the Mississippi River to cease the using of all classes of automobiles, with a few named exceptions, motor cycles, and motor boats on Sundays until further notice, as a gasoline conservation measure. Only voluntary compliance with the letter and spirit of the request will prevent the issuance of a mandatory order prohibiting the use of gasoline on Sundays, it was declared at the Fuel Administration today. Automobiles for hire are included in the curtailment program.

Motor vehicles to which the restrictions do not apply were announced as:

Tractors and motor trucks employed in actual transportation of freight.

Vehicles of physicians used in performance of professional duties.

Ambulances, fire apparatus, police patrol wagons, undertakers' wagons, and conveyances used for funerals.

Railway equipment using gasoline.

Repair outfits employed by telephone and public service companies.

Motor vehicles on errands of necessity in rural communities where transportation by steam or electricity is not available.

The action was taken by the Fuel Administration, it was stated, to meet a threatened shortage of gasoline for shipment overseas, created by the increased domestic demands and extensive military operations in France.

"The United States Fuel Administration considers it necessary that a limited conservation of gasoline be undertaken in the States east of the Mississippi River, in view of the increasing demand for gasoline for war purposes and the paramount obligation of meeting promptly and fully all overseas requirements," said a statement issued jointly by Administrator Garfield and Mark S. Requa, Director of the Oil Division of the Fuel Administration. "An appeal is made therefore to the people of the United States east of the Mississippi River to exercise rigid economy in the consumption of gasoline during the next few weeks as a necessary and practical act of patriotism.

"War necessities are being and will continue to be promptly and fully met, but this is the period of the year when consumption of gasoline is at its highest, and the increased domestic demands, together with the extensive military operations in France, have rendered necessary for a limited period the adoption of safeguards against possible shortage.

"In view of the difficulty, if not the impossibility, of differentiating between the various uses to which automobiles are applied, the United States Fuel Administration believes that the greatest measure of economy can be effected with the least interference with the business of the country through the discontinuance of all classes of motor vehicles, motor boats, and motor cycles on Sundays.

"The United States Fuel Administration therefore requests that in the section of the United States east of the Mississippi River there shall be a discontinuance of use of the vehicles above specified, including all such as are operated for hire, on each Sunday hereafter until notification that the need for such discontinuance has ceased."

After listing the exceptions to the request, the statement makes an appeal "to the patriotic men and women of America east of the Mississippi River to undertake, voluntarily, additional conservation in the operation of their own automobiles wherever possible."

MAY EXTEND TO WEST ALSO.

But Sunday Saving of Gasoline Need Not Last Long, Says Bedford.

While the request of the Fuel Administration regarding the laying up of automobiles, motor boats, and motor cycles on Sundays applies only to the territory east of the Mississippi, A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the National Petroleum War Service Committee and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, said last evening that, within a week or a little more, the Sunday conservation of gasoline might be made applicable to the whole country.

"Producers and refiners," Mr. Bedford continued, "in the territory west of the Mississippi now are making a careful survey of the whole situation, and unless it is possible to obtain from them a sufficient supply of gasoline, the whole country will be obliged to stop its Sunday motoring.

"This season is to the gasoline industry what the middle of the Winter is to the coal trade—it represents the peak-load of consumption. This period of peak-load, however, is not an extended one, and the precautionary measures now taken as a safeguard against any possible shortage of gasoline for our war program need not necessarily be of long duration."

On June 1 last there were 421,084 automobiles licensed in the State of New York. A conservative estimate is that, if all of these cars were run on Sunday, they would consume five gallons of gasoline each, or a total of 2,105,420 gallons. Including taxicabs, there are 192,432 registered motor cars in the City of New York. If all these cars were operated on Sunday, and each averaged a consumption of five gallons of gasoline for the day, they would altogether consume 962,160 gallons of gasoline on any one Sunday. In the whole country there are 5,500,000 automobile. If all were operated on Sunday on the basis of five gallons for each car, the gasoline consumption would reach the stupendous total of 27,500,000 gallons. These figures are, of course, extreme, but give an idea of the possibilities of gasoline saving.

CARDINAL FARLEY BETTER.

Because of Steady Improvement No Bulletin Was Issued Last Night.

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, Aug. 27.—The physicians in attendance on Cardinal Farley said today that they were much gratified at the continued improvement in his condition, and no formal bulletin was issued tonight. Mgr. Carroll, the Cardinal's secretary, who has been in attendance on the Cardinal night and day at the request of the prelate, allowed himself a long walk this afternoon.

"The physicians are much encouraged as to Cardinal Farley's condition," said Mgr. Carroll. "While it cannot be said that he is out of danger the improvement he shows is satisfactory, and it is steadily maintained. He is gaining strength and his appetite is returning."

As an index of the improvement in the Cardinal's condition, it was pointed out that a week ago Dr. Thomas F. McParlan and Dr. Ernest Fahnestock were in attendance constantly. Now they visit the patient once a day.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 27.—The Pope has sent another Apostolic benediction to Cardinal Farley, expressing ardent wishes for his recovery.

RYAN APPOINTED TO DIRECT AIR PLANS

the Department of the Air, but the fact that the Administration has taken this action is interpreted by members of the committee as meaning that the President is not at this time in favor of the adoption of the recommendation for the creation of a separate air department.

There is no criticism made of the selection of Mr. Ryan for the task that has now been intrusted to him. Members of the Senate committee regard him as a strong man for the place, and were very much impressed with the testimony which he gave before the subcommittee which investigated the aircraft situation. The recommendations in the report to the Senate were partly based on the testimony he gave.

Recalls War Cabinet Fight.

There was a repetition of recent American political and military history in the action taken today, when the Senate Military Committee some months ago advocated, as a result of its original inquiry into army affairs, the creation of a War Cabinet and the establishment of a Director of Munitions, the Administration, opposed to both of those legislative projects, took precisely the same sort of action that was announced today.

Secretary Baker at that time announced that a War Council had been set up in the War Department, and, instead of setting up a Director of Munitions, with the rank of a Cabinet officer, the Administration last January appointed Mr. Stettinius as Surveyor General of all army purchases. He was placed in charge of the procurement and production of all supplies by the five army bureaus dealing with ordnance, quartermaster, signal, engineer, and medical matters. The appointment of Mr. Stettinius was hailed at the time as being in effect, that of a munitions supervisor and director for all War Department purchases, and was viewed as the answer of the Administration to the Munitions Ministry bill, then pending in the Senate.

Both that action and the step taken today are regarded by members of the Senate Military Committee as being half-way measures, and as an Administration compromise between what the Senate Committee has advocated and the opposition of the War Department to both projects.

Stettinius Retains Powers.

From the authorized announcement it is plain that Mr. Stettinius will continue to exercise all the powers he has previously had as special representative of the War Department in France. The arrival of Stettinius in Europe was officially announced on July 23. His visit there was for a variety of purposes and covers a large field. The size of the army in France has increased and its industrial operations had so expanded that it was regarded by the President and Mr. Baker as necessary to install similar statistical and accounting methods here and abroad, in an attempt to effect complete co-operation.

Since his arrival in France Mr. Stettinius has been making a survey of the services of supply, including all matters of accounting, requisition, and finance. He has also been representing the War Department in the conferences of the Munitions Council, the general industrial interests of the United States being represented by the War Industries Board.

SENATORS CONDEMN AIRCRAFT CENSORING

GERMANS KNOW THE FACTS

Lodge Fears Secrecy at Home—Weeks Asks About Status of Congressional Record.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The recent action of the Maddox Postal Censorship Board in barring from the foreign mails newspapers containing the disclosures on the aircraft program by the Senate subcommittee was assailed in the Senate today by Messrs. Weeks and Lodge of Massachusetts, Poindexter of Washington, Brandegee of Connecticut, and Penrose of Pennsylvania. Senator Weeks even proposed to put before the Senate Printing Committee the question of whether or not the Congressional Record would be stopped from overseas postage because the aviation report was printed in that publication, but he postponed his motion until another day.

Two telegrams were presented by Senator Weeks. One was a copy of the recent order and read:

Aug. 23, 1918.

Collector of Customs, Boston, Mass.:

Do not license or permit exportation of newspapers of the editions of Aug. 22 and 23 carrying report of aircraft subcommittee of the Senate Committee of Military Affairs; also prevent taking out of any account of service reports in magazines, letters, or otherwise. This is in conformity with action of postal and cable censorship.

HALSTEAD, Customs Service.

The other telegram was a short, formal communication signed by the Collector of the Port of Boston, inclosing the first telegram and sent, Senator Weeks said, to the Boston newspapers.

Senator Weeks said in his speech:

"I consider it my duty to bring this matter to the attention of the Senate because it directly concerns the report of the sub-committee. While the financial side of it is not of the first importance, it means that there is a mass of junk in every Post Office in the country. The newspapers which were going abroad in their regular course had many thousands of dollars' worth of postage on those papers, and of course that will be a total loss.

"Naturally, the press published this report and without any notice, contrary-wise, this action was taken at 11:30 o'clock, after the morning papers were on the presses.

"I am not confident that there is not authority for this, but it seems to me most drastic and ill-advised, and intended to prevent certain information from getting into the enemy's hands, when everybody knows that information published in the press and Congressional Record is well known to the enemy or will be, and there cannot be any force to that argument."

Senator Brandegee commented on the fact that the report was printed in the Congressional Record.

"If," Mr. Brandegee wished to know from the Printing Committee, "the Congressional Record is sent abroad to a soldier—I send it myself—he may be captured, and the Record would fall into the hands of the enemy. Why, then, is not the Record barred from foreign mails? And if it is not why then are the newspapers?"

"Does not the wording of the telegram imply that the purpose of the Government is to conceal from the soldiers what the enemy already knows?" was suggested by Senator Penrose.

"The purpose is plain," interjected Senator Lodge. "If material appears which the Government says can't be sent abroad, that will tend to make every newspaper refuse to publish the matter. The only people in the world who are interested in the subject and do not know about the aircraft business are the American people. The condition is perfectly well known to our Allies and our enemies.

"All important newspapers send copies of their editions to Europe. If publication of this matter prevents their going abroad, costs them money, loss of postage, and all that, they will omit the matter and it will never reach the American people. That, it seems to me, is the real trouble."

Senator Weeks said he thought undoubtedly that the Congressional Record would come within the postal order. He moved that the telegrams be referred to the Printing Committee along with the requests already mentioned.

Senator Thomas of Colorado asked that the business of the draft bill be not interrupted, but Senator Penrose remarked:

"If this policy is to be followed, what's the use of debating anything here? If publicity, when it becomes disagreeable to certain officials of the War Department, is to be prohibited in every newspaper, magazine, and letter, we might as well adjourn the Senate today and let the War Department run the war in secret session."

"I want to get ahead with the Draft bill," rejoined Senator Thomas.

SUBMARINE CHASER SUNK BY TRANSPORT

Mistaken for U-Boat While Off Fire Island and Is Destroyed by Shell Fire.

17 OF HER CREW MISSING

Nine Survivors, Four of Them Wounded, Are Picked Up—Accident Occurred in Dark.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—American submarine chaser No. 209, operating out of Philadelphia, was mistaken for an enemy submarine by the American steamer Felix Taussig off Fire Island, New York, early this morning and was sunk by shellfire before the mistake was discovered. Seventeen members of her crew, including the commander and the executive officer, are missing.

The chaser was manned by naval reserves. Eight of the survivors, some of them wounded, have been landed at New York, and one has been landed at Lewes, Del.

Of the survivors landed the following were wounded:

Thomas Harran, chief boatswain's mate; Claude Wild, machinist's mate; Clarence S. Evans, machinist's mate, and R. A. Corcoran, Quartermaster.

Unwounded survivors are:

Elmer Gleason, machinist's mate; Elmer S. Kirby, electrician; Claude Kalney, Quartermaster; Charles N. Thomas, seaman, and George B. Weigand, gunner's mate.

Vessels are searching the vicinity in the hope that other survivors may still be afloat.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 27.—As the result of not showing lights or signaling to make known her identity, submarine chaser No. 209 was fired upon between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning sixty-five miles south of this port and sunk. Eight survivors, four of whom were wounded, were picked up by the American supply transport Felix Taussig, which was the vessel that fired on the chaser, and were brought into this port.

The four wounded survivors were transferred to a destroyer and conveyed to the naval hospital. The other four were taken to one of the piers leased by the Government and put under a guard sent by the naval officer in charge of the district.

The Felix Taussig went to her pier to load supplies and the Captain, I. J. Vail, and the officers declined to give out any statement regarding the accident. They said that a naval guard had charge of the guns on the vessel.

In the opinion of the men from the merchant vessel, the officers on the submarine patrol should have flashed their Morse lamp directly they saw the steamship approaching their craft. This is wartime, they said, and owing to the activity of U-boats off the American coast the gun crews on the transports and supply ships will not take any chances.

The Felix Taussig is a little more than a year old and was built at Newport News for the Crowell & Thurlow Steamship Company. She is 6,295 tonnage, 395 feet long, and 55 feet beam.

The Captain of an American steamship, which arrived here from Central America and the West Indies with seventy-five passengers some hours after the arrival of the Felix Taussig, told how the gun crew of his ship had just missed firing on a United States destroyer, just as the Taussig had fired on the submarine patrol.

U-BOAT SINKS A SCHOONER.

The Rush, of Boston, Launched Thanksgiving Day, Is Latest Victim.

A CANADIAN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 27.—The new American fishing schooner Rush of Boston was sunk yesterday morning by an enemy submarine while on the fishing ground of this coast. The crew arrived here safely today on board another fishing vessel. Captain Quadros of the Rush reported that the submarine came alongside in a thick fog and he and his crew were ordered to take to small boats immediately. They rowed two miles and were picked up by the schooner which brought them to port. There were several fishing vessels on the Banks at the time, but Captain Quadros made no report of other sinkings.

BOMB HAVEN OF U-BOATS.

Zeebrugge and Bruges Attacked by British Airmen.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—"Between Aug. 19 and Aug. 25," says an official statement issued today by the British Admiralty, "the air force with the navy bombed the Bruges docks, the Bruges and Zeebrugge mole, the Zeebrugge Canal, the Ostend docks, St. Pierre Capelle, the Solway works, and the towns of Middelkerke, Westende, and Maria Aalter. We also dropped bombs on German airdromes at Costacker, Ghistelles, Mariakerke, and Vlisseghem.

"Approximately twenty-seven tons of bombs were dropped. At Bruges many good bursts were observed, direct hits being made on the submarine station. Bursts were also observed on the storesheds on both sides of the west basin. Two large explosions and two big fires were caused in the docks.

"Anti-submarine, reconnaissance, photo graphic and fighting patrols have been maintained. Enemy shipping and land batteries have been attacked. Our fighting squadrons have destroyed five enemy machines and driven down five others out of control. Four of our machines are missing.

"In home waters during the same period, seaplanes, airplanes and airships have maintained their watch and submarine convoy and hostile aircraft patrols have been active. Enemy submarines have been sighted and attacked and mines located and destroyed."

CRACK WIELDERS OF THE RACQUET ADVANCE IN TENNIS TITLE TOURNEY

TENNIS MATCH GOES FOREVER AND EVER

Contest Between Kashio and Dionne Puts Tennyson's Brook Into the Discard.

SUN SETS IN SHEER ENNUI

Favorites in National Title Tournament Advance—Irving Wright Gives Hall a Battle.

A long distance match in point of time rather than in number of games played was the outstanding feature of yesterday's competition in the national singles championship tennis tournament at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. After a battle of four hours and twenty minutes darkness finally halted the contest between the Japanese player, Seiichiro Kashio, and G. A. L. Dionne, two of the most persistent and skillful baseliners in the country. It was a match that taxed the endurance of spectators as well as players, and it proved far too fatiguing for one referee, the first incumbent of the post resigning after two sets had been played. When the last glimmer of sunlight died out and the rivals reluctantly left the court, Kashio was leading at 6—1, 7—9—, 6—2, and the games were 2 all on the fourth set.

Even in its unfinished state the match takes rank as one of the longest that has ever been played in a championship tournament and before the decision is finally rendered the last shreds of record created in the famous Presbrey-Tailer match at Newport in 1888 will probably have been torn away. Yesterday Harold Throckmorton and Harold L. Taylor surpassed the record of games in that match but did not take the long distance time record away. According to the best authenticated reports Presbrey and Tailer played for something more than five hours, but with the Kashio-Dionne match of only slightly less duration for a little more than three sets it appears as if the famous match of thirty years ago would be totally eclipsed.

The contest of yesterday went through two stages. At first it was decidedly dull tennis, but later, while the play never soared to a high level, the event began to attract attention through its very length, and the spectators gathered about making facetious remarks. Gerald Donaldson remarked that the men would have to stop long enough to let them mow the lawn, and another bystander said that it was the nearest thing to perpetual motion that he had ever seen. Still another, when the day was waning fast, remarked, "Oh, let them play one more rally, there is still some twenty-five minutes before it gets dark."

Never a Respite for the Ball.

One of the favorite occupations of the faithful fans was that of keeping track of the number of times the ball traveled over the net before a point was finished off. One count mounted up to the enormous total of 123 flights of the ball across the barrier, and anything that brought a count of less than fifty returns was called a fast snappy rally.

Both Dionne and Kashio held to the baseline game without a falter until it seemed as if they were chained to the chalk mark. The midcourt was in good condition when darkness intervened, but just behind the two baselines there was a strip that resembled more a plowed field than it did a bit of tennis court. The difficulty in the case of both players was not so much that they did not possess a finishing stroke, but rather that each was afraid to advance for a volley or a kill against the accurate passing strokes that his opponent had at command.

The play in the other matches of the day was rather tame. The leaders, the high ranking men, are advancing steadily from every quarter of the draw, and none of them was hard pressed to earn his way to advanced brackets yesterday, straight sets prevailing for the most part. The tournament has now, however, reached the point where some of the stars will be called upon to face each other, and some keen playing is promised for this afternoon, when Robert Lindley Murray is to meet Theodore R. Pell, while Nathaniel W. Niles is called upon to face one of the most proficient of the Western players, Ralph H. Burdick. Frederick B. Alexander will test strength with Harold Throckmorton, and William T. Tilden will face Conrad B. Doyle, the Washington chop stroke star. Also Walter Merrill Hall and Walter T. Hayes will decide which shall advance to the fourth round brackets.

With the exception of Hall all of these men advanced easily yesterday. It was Irving Wright, the famous Boston expert, who tried out Hall's skill, and he succeeded in getting the first set from the New Yorker and put forth a merry contest in the second set, but after that Hall's skill and stamina proved too great and Wright was forced to defeat by the score of 4—6, 7—5, 6—1, 6—2.

Alexander Forges to Fore.

There is a growing disposition to consider Frederick B. Alexander as a more formidable rival for high place in the tournament than a week or so ago. The former internationalist showed yesterday that he is playing in fine form when he defeated A. H. Chapin, allowing his rival only five games in three sets. It is true that Alexander has a hard row to hoe. Should he defeat Throckmorton today he would probably be called upon to face Murray in the next round.

Murray had an idle afternoon yesterday. His opponent was to have been Lieutenant H. G. M. Kelleher, a strong Harvard net star before he took up his work in the army. A keen struggle was promised in this event, but Kelleher was forced to default the match, his furlough being abruptly terminated. Murray worked out in a short practice match against Frederick B. Alexander, and, while he showed improvement, his game will have to mount to greater heights if he is to stand under the fire of the next two or three rounds.

The Japanese expert, Kumagae, gave one of his best exhibitions since the Crescent A. C. tournament, when he defeated George W. Wightman of Boston in a third round match at 6—3, 6—2, 6—2. Wightman played some pretty tennis during the early part of the first set that enabled him to gain a slight advantage, but when Kumagae's strokes began to work smoothly Wightman was an easy victim. The Nipponese made rather more errors than usual, but he possessed a greater ability than heretofore to finish off the points with crisp volleying, and Wightman was also a victim on passing shots, especially a backhand cross court stroke that flashed from Kumagae's racquet with great speed.

William T. Tilden, 2d., showed his usual hard hitting and brilliant game in earning a victory over Channing G. Burrows at 6—1, 6—3, 6—3. It was evident that Burrows did not possess the skill to draw out Tilden's best tennis; still the Philadelphian, who has not met defeat thus far this season, won high praise from the onlookers for the sparkling quality of his work. Tilden still remains the outstanding favorite for the singles crown and yesterday, after a rest of some twenty-four hours, there was not nearly as much evidence of his being overplayed as had been expected. Tilden will have his first hard match of the tournament today against Doyle.

Two of the younger tennis stars got into action yesterday, when Vincent Richards, the national boys' champion, with Tilden, holder of the national doubles crown, defeated Frank T. Anderson at 6—1, 6—3, 6—3. This was a more decisive victory than had been expected. Both of the youngsters played some keen tennis, but Richards possessed a steadiness, combined with his brilliancy, that would not be denied.

Lieutenant S. Howard Voshell won his second match of the tournament when he defeated Harold D. Bretz at 6—3, 6—0, 6—1. Richards and Voshell seem now to be the two strongest contenders in the upper quarter of the draw.

Play for the national junior championship in singles, and also the national boys' championship will begin this afternoon. In the junior event there are sixteen players entered, one coming from as far West as Seattle, while another contender is from Los Angeles. Eight players are entered for the boys' title.

MOGRIDGE PARRIES YANKS' PERIL TWICE

Industrious Southpaw Saves One Game and Bats In Winning Run in Second.

George Mogridge, who comprises the greater part of the Yankee pitching staff, left-handed the St. Louis Browns out of a couple of games up at the Polo Grounds yesterday. The second engagement spread itself over twelve innings, and with one gone in the last of that inning Mogridge took the matter in his own hand and produced the seething hit which pushed Roger Peckinpaugh over the plate with the run which gave the Yanks a 7 to 6 victory.

Mogridge was the life saver in the first game, for when Slim Love began to get groggy and the Browns threatened to cut down the Yankees' lead in the eighth inning Mogridge squelched the impending conflagration. The Yanks grabbed this pastime 4 to 2.

The busiest man on the lot outside of Mogridge was Leslie Nunamaker of the Browns, but formerly with the Yanks. Nunamaker got into the first game in the eighth as a pinch hitter in time to make a hit and score a run. In the second pastime, he got five hits and was once walked intentionally by Mogridge.

Nunamaker also played at first base and in the right field in the second clash, but as a first baseman he wasn't a howling success. He took his place on the bag when George Sisler left his regular rôle to pitch the second game. Before the game was over Sisler had to go back to first base, for Nunamaker was slowly but surely muffing and kicking the game away with a shocking array of errors. While he was winning the game with his bat, he was foozling it away by nervously toying with the ball.

The Browns got away to a good lead in the third inning of the second game when, with Johns and Maisel aboard the bases, Sisler planked a home run to deep right, making the circuit of the bases at the fastest clip that has been seen in Harlem this season. If Sisler had been running on the Saratoga track instead of at the Polo Grounds, it would have been a new record.

There was no end to the surprises which blossomed in this double triumph of the Yanks. Ham Hyatt, the century plant of the Yankee Club, was the first man up to bat in the second inning, and the Little Rock Mauler smashed a home run into the right field grandstand. This feat cannot be doubted, as it was witnessed by several people of unshakeable veracity. It was for this very purpose that Hyatt was brought to New York some time ago, but it wasn't until yesterday that Ham got the range of the stand.

Manager Huggins is perhaps the most far-seeing manager in the game, for between the games he had Derrill Pratt, Jr., aged 3, out warming up for the season of 1933. Young Pratt handled the ball as well as Nunamaker did in the seventh inning of the second game. Sisler would probably have pitched to victory in that second tilt if Nunamaker had not been such a shaky substitute for him at the gateway corner.

TURF RIVALS DODGE ISSUE WITH JOHREN

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 27.—Harry Payne Whitney's Johren had an excellent public trial for the Saratoga Cup to be run on Saturday when he won the Huron Handicap for three-year-olds at a mile and three-sixteenths this afternoon. The presence of Whitney's crack kept all but A. K. Macomber's Hand Grenade out of the race.

Some undeserved hissing and booing greeted Starter Cassidy for his failure to get two horses away on even terms. The start was directly in front of the grand stand, yet but few in the crowd noticed that when Cassidy called for the horses to come on Hand Grenade swerved and Loftus took him up to avoid a collision with Johren.

Loftus made up a good deal of the lost ground gradually so that half way along the back stretch he was close on the heels of Johren. The sound of the horse behind him made Johren quicken his pace again, and he turned into the home stretch with three lengths' advantage. In spite of the fact that Loftus urged his mount to the utmost, while Robinson sat perfectly still on Johren, the Macomber candidate never threatened the leader, and Johren won well in hand. The summaries:

Early Activity in Fur Trade.

Buyers of furs for women are said to be in the market much earlier this year than usual, and, although prices are considerably higher than they have been in the past, business is quite active. There is a good demand for coats of natural raccoon, Hudson seal, marmot, and squirrel. The popular coat lengths are from 30 to 45 inches. In the business being done in fur sets, one feature is the revival in demand for stone marten. These sets are made to sell at retail for from $75 up. Neck pieces are made with from two to four skins.

Spring Worsteds Opened.

A limited offering of Stafford worsteds for next Spring was made yesterday by H. W. T. Mali & Co. of this city. The line opened includes twenty-two different styles and is a worsted warp, cotton filled, eleven-ounce material priced at $3.50 net. This comprises all that Mali & Co. will have for the Spring season of 1919, and practically all of it has been allotted to the firm's regular customers. Since no salesmen are being sent out this season, reference samples will be sent on request to out-of-town customers, and the amount of their allotment will then be announced to them.

Getting Stock In This Month.

Retailers of men's clothes are taking shipment of their orders for Fall garments in August this year, instead of waiting as in past seasons until September. This action is based, it is said, on the desire to avoid any such delays as were experienced last Fall when the freight congestion became so acute that it was pretty nearly impossible to obtain merchandise. The early shipments now being called for involved, of course, earlier dating on invoices and call for correspondingly earlier payments, but merchants would rather do this than run the risk of having last year's experience duplicated.

Advances in Suit Prices.

The cheaper grades of men's ready to wear suits and other articles have advanced much more, proportionately, than the correspondingly low grades of women's ready to wear, according to reports from resident buyers in this city. An instance is mentioned of a cheap suit for men which formerly sold for $7 at retail, for which the merchant must now ask from $14 to $16. In no case, it is said, have women's garments had anything like a proportionate increase. And, while men are very much inclined to complain of the higher prices now asked, and even to refuse to buy, women, on the other hand, not only are willing to pay the new prices, but seem anxious to pay more for better merchandise.

Fair Trade in Gray Goods.

There was a fair trade in gray goods yesterday, second hands transacting the greater bulk of the business. Sheetings figured most extensively in these dealings, and the leading constructions were 36-inch 48 squares and 36-inch 48-40s. Prices were 14¾ cents and 13½ cents respectively, the former showing a margin of half a cent over the Government price. The small activity in trade from the mills was due in large part to the fact that mills are not willing to take on any business for later than October delivery. Among printcloths, however, there was more trading from first hands, with 30-inch 48-40s at 10¾ cents as the leading construction. Some bandage cloths were also dealt in from first hands, notably 36-inch 32-28s at 6 15-16 cents.

Goods Not Shipped as Ordered.

There has been quite a little complaint of late by buyers for the women's ready-to-wear departments of the local stores, that goods are not being shipped from manufacturers as ordered. One buyer seen yesterday said that he had just recently received a shipment of dresses from a comparatively well known manufacturer in which black dresses had been substituted for navy. Another error which is said to be occurring with exasperating frequency is the confusing of sizes. In one case, a shipment of goods was received which had not been ordered at all, but was meant for another store. It is thought that these mistakes are resulting from the inexperienced girl packers whom many manufacturers have had to take on to replace men called to the colors.

Situation in Work Gloves.

Most manufacturers of work gloves are not doing very much in the way of Spring business for the civilian trade. It is said that upward of 50 per cent. of the country's output of these gloves has been contracted for by the Government, and work on these orders is just now occupying the chief attention of manufacturers. A few mills are offering limited lines for Spring, but they seem to be only a small percentage of the industry. It has become practically impossible to obtain certain leathers for work gloves. Chief among these are black leathers used for automobile gloves. Manufacture of these lines for civilian purposes is therefore practically at a standstill.

Novelty Raincoats for Fall.

Novelty raincoats are said to have been well taken for the coming Fall season. Cravanetted woolens, worsteds and silks are extensively used, and various combinations of woolens and silks are also in evidence. Changeable silks in coats for early wear have sold in quite large quantities, and among those numbers which have been most popular there is no dearth of bright and striking combinations of contrasting colors. Various military features are coming more to the front every day, and khaki-colored models of an out and out military cut are well sought.

Many people would doubtless be only too glad to take advantage of today's investment opportunities, did they but know just what selections to make. Such people should find of special interest our list of current investment offerings, representing various types of securities already held by a wide circle of conservative investors.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Generally Strong in a Fairly Active Session—New Railroad Financing.

The rise in prices on the Stock Exchange which was interrupted Monday by profit-taking operations was resumed yesterday, with the professional element still supplying most of the business, and at the close most of the active issues were in good demand at higher prices. Steel rose to 115⅞ on a heavy turnover and closed the day with a net advance of a full point, thus realizing the expectations of traders who accumulated the stock last week in the belief that it would make up the full amount of the forthcoming quarterly dividend before payment. Distillers responded to the news that the prohibition legislation would not become effective until six months after the date originally decided upon by selling up ¾ on an active demand. General Motors was conspicuously weak, dropping 7¼ points on the news of the curtailment program and the report that some of the plants will be taken over by the Government for aircraft needs. The Marine issues were all active and higher, although no news was forthcoming after yesterday's meeting bearing on the efforts to bring about a solution of the problem of receiving the proceeds of the sale of the British vessels without making them subject to heavy taxation.

The rails have been growing in favor in the belief that the Government contract will soon be signed, but trading has continued on a small scale. There is a great deal of new financing to be taken care of as soon as the contract agreement is reached. The Baltimore & Ohio has upward of $20,000,000 in bank loans to fund, and the other large systems will take advantage of the earliest opportunity to provide for needs that have been accumulating since the first of the year, and in some cases, for a considerably longer period. It is expected in the Street that the deadlock will be broken today or tomorrow by an offering of $15,000,000 of bonds by the Lehigh Valley, and a successful outcome of this sale is expected to open the way for other offerings. There has been a surprisingly steady demand for bonds, particularly of the foreign Governments and muncipalities, in recent weeks, and when the next Liberty Loan is out of the way there will be a number of important offerings of new issues.

Italian exchange was advanced sharply yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank. After being held at 7.50 for cables for the last fortnight lire were marked up to 6.35 in the process of stabilizing the market. Call money was unchanged, with 6 per cent. being paid for all loans. The cotton market saw a further advance which carried futures to new high levels.

PRICES FIRM IN LONDON.

Banks Buoyant on Growing Financial Strength.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Prices on the Stock Exchange today were very firm. Banks were buoyant on the growing financial strength of banking institutions generally. Shipping shares continued their upward movement. Home investments favored holders.

Foreign securities were quiet. Mining shares, notably those of gold descriptions, improved. Money was in good demand. The supply was somewhat curtailed.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New Pipe Line to Rush Oil.

In response to a request from the Fuel Administration the Sinclair oil interests have begun construction of a new pipe line, according to announcement yesterday, for speeding up deliveries of petroleum at the Atlantic seaboard from the Oklahoma and Kansas fields. The Government has advanced part of the necessary funds. It is expected that the line will be finished within three months. For 200 miles the line, to be known as the War Pipe Line, will parallel the new line of the Sinclair Oil and Refining Company, ending at East Chicago, where the petroleum will be transferred to pipes running to the coast. The new line will be operated by the Sinclair-Cudahy Pipe Line Company, which will supply the pumping facilities.

Exchange Market Changes.

Further progress has been made in stabilizing some of the foreign exchange markets, Italian quotations yesterday showing a sharp marking up. The Italian Government agency controlling exchange with the assistance of representatives of the United States Government advanced the quotation for cable remittances from 7.50 to 6.35 lire to the dollar. At the same time French rates scored another substantial advance, gaining 2½ centimes to the dollar. At the close an American dollar would buy 5.53½ francs, compared with 5.56 on Saturday. Swiss rates moved to a lower level.

Federal Mining Preferred Climbs.

Federal Mining & Smelting preferred gained 3 points more yesterday to 42, compared with last week's minimum quotation of 34¾. The sudden rise of more than 7 points in a few days appeared to reflect the discovery by traders that a stock paying 7 per cent. dividends was selling at an abnormally low level.

Steel's Steady Progress.

The advance of Steel common yesterday was by no means precipitate, but carried the earmarks of buying of a sort to please speculators who look some distance ahead. After opening a fraction lower than Monday's closing figure, the quotation shaded off somewhat further, then turned upward in a slow, but steady, process to a new high level for the year at 115⅞. The action of this stock seemed to impart steadiness and later firmness to the whole market.

General Motors Marked Down.

Only a few hundred shares of General Motors changed hands yesterday, but these were offered down in a rather remarkable manner, considering the market calibre of this issue. The final price of 154½ represented a decline of 7¼ points for the day, and at the end of the day the bid reported on the ticker was 144 and the offered price 152. If it were possible to explain the market vagaries of General Motors, one might refer to the action of stockholders in authorizing an increase of the common stock at a special meeting in Wilmington from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000. The preferred was increased from an authorized total of $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Ruling on Boston Acceptances.

In well-informed banking circles it is expected that the New York Clearing House will at an early date either rescind or modify the recently adopted rule providing for the imposition of a collection charge of 1-10 of 1 per cent. on bankers' acceptances payable in Boston and other cities. It was suggested yesterday that New York banks investing funds in such acceptances might escape the loss of the day's interest by selling Boston bank acceptances to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York a few days before the maturity of the bills. In such cases, the New York bank or trust company could indorse the Boston acceptances and sell them at a profit. It was pointed out that in Europe it is customary for the central bank—which corresponds to our Reserve Bank—to gather in bills of short maturity and attend to their collection at maturity.

Chinese Internal Loan.

Advices from Peking state that subscriptions to the combined short-term 6 per cent. Chinese Government Internal Loan of 1918 ($48,000,000) and to the seventh year Internal Loan ($45,000,000) from May 1, the date of the offering, to June 30, when books closed, totaled $44,819,900. The unsold bonds have been turned over to the Bank of China and to the Bank of Communications as security for the debt of the Government to the two institutions.

FIT MEN FOR FOREIGN TRADE

Banker Tells of Plans for Specialized Education.

James K. Carter, Vice President of the National City Bank, who has charge of the South American branches of the institution, made public yesterday some additional details of the plan launched recently under the auspices of the United States Bureau of Education for encouraging the training of men for foreign service. An adivsory council to the committee appointed to expand the program has been appointed, and Mr. Carter announced that these men had been added to it: Cyrus H. McCormick, H. K. Mulford, Arthur T. Hadley, J. A. McGregore, John Hays Hammond, Charles M. Schwab, John H. Rosseter, Edward K. Graham, F. W. Taussig, Benjamin Ide Wheeler, Frank V. Thompson, and Dr. Joseph French Johnson. The work will be under the direction of P. P. Claxton and Glen Levin Swiggett.

"It is hoped that out of the ideas which are being presented by the committee," said Mr. Carter, "a very practical course of instruction will be found and put into practice. There are on the committee men who have had to deal with all varieties of foreign business and who know what the requirements are for doing the right thing. They will give their experience of these requirements, and the professional educators on the committee will be able to work out the practical technique of training men in the requirements."

ALL CORPORATIONS MUST FILE RETURNS

Report Required Whether Capital Stock Is Worth More or Less Than $75,000.

HOLDING CONCERNS EXEMPT

Collector Edwards Issues Statement Based on Latest Rulings from Washington.

Collector William H. Edwards of the Second District made a statement yesterday intended to elucidate the capital stock tax, returns for which must be filed and payments made not later than Sept. 30.

"What I should like to have the public understand," Mr. Edwards said, "is that all companies not specifically exempt, are required to file returns, even though they are not taxable, and regardless of the market value of their capital stock, whether over or under $75,000.

"Previous regulations, according to instructions from Washington, held that mutual insurance companies and so-called Massachusetts trusts were not liable to this tax. The previous ruling has been reversed. Mutual and participating plan insurance companies, so-called Massachusetts trusts, Pennsylvania partnerships, with limited liability, and similar so-called limited partnerships or partnership associations are liable to this tax.

"Likewise previous regulations held that both parent and subsidiary companies were liable to tax. The new regulations hold that companies exclusively engaged in the holding of securities of other companies are not engaged in business within the meaning of this act. However, a company engaged in business in addition to owning the securities of other companies is liable to the tax and no deduction is allowed on account of holding such securities.

"Previous regulations held that capital stock once issued would be regarded as outstanding, even though it had been reacquired by the company and carried on its books as Treasury stock. This ruling is canceled by the new regulations.

"Previous regulations provided rates for capitalizing average of annual net income for determining fair value. New regulations provide that taxpayers shall use for this purpose the rate prevailing in the particular business and locality to make the stock of corporations similarly engaged worth par.

"Previous regulations provided that fair value would be determined and reported as follows: First, by market quotations; second, prices at which shares were sold if not listed on any Exchange; third, estimate based on book value or by capitalizing average of the annual net income.

"New regulations provide for reporting as the fair value the amount shown by the exhibit reflecting the greatest value, except under certain conditions, when the fair value to be reported would be the amount reflected by the exhibit which more nearly conforms to the required value.

"Regulations No. 38, revised, supersedes all previous rules and regulations, and is applicable in its entirety for the taxable period ending June 30, 1919. It is retroactive, however, in so far as liability to the tax is concerned, with the exception that companies whose capital stock had a fair value of less than $75,000 will not be required to make returns for the taxable periods ended June 30, 1917, and June 30, 1918.

"Certain classes of corporations previously held exempt and now held liable to this tax will be required to file returns for the taxable periods ended June 30, 1917, and June 30, 1918, inasmuch as that part of the revised regulations dealing with liability to tax is made retroactive."

The Collector added that returns by such companies for past periods should be made on Form 707, revised April, 1917, and would be accepted without penalty if filed on or before the final date for the returns for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919. The determination of fair value, he said, of such delinquent returns would be in accordance with the old rules and regulations.

COTTON FUTURES MAKE GAINS OF 85-95 POINTS

October Contracts Sell Up to 35 Cents, a New Record for the Local Exchange.

The cotton market yesterday had a firm opening, advancing from 30 to 60 points, and practically throughout the session it showed increasing strength. The best prices reached were the highest in the history of the Cotton Exchange. October contracts sold up to 35 cents and closed at 34.45 cents, a net gain of 85 points for the day. The closing quotation for September showed a similar gain, while November, December, May, and July deliveries scored a net advance of 95 points. January, February, and March contracts represented an increase of 90 points for the day.

Liverpool was a moderate buyer, but the principal demand came from trade interests and was inspired chiefly by reports of decreasing crop estimates. Although there were slight reactions, the market displayed unusual strength and closed barely steady.

TO INCREASE STEEL FOR WAR

Conference Will Be Held Today to Provide for Greater Output.

Representative steel and iron men from the major producing centres are scheduled to meet this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Waldorf for a conference on ways and means to increase the output of materials needed for war purposes. Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, will preside. He is also President of the American Iron and Steel Institute, under whose auspices the meeting will be held.

Judge Gary said yesterday at the close of the meeting of the Steel Corporation's Finance Committee that the current production of the mills was satisfactory in view of seasonal conditions. The output of ingots was proceeding at 95 per cent. of rated capacity, which was slightly less than a month ago, but equal to the best of normal years. Hot weather has tended to slacken manufacturing somewhat. The blast furnaces, he stated, were working at 92 per cent. of capacity.

LOAN INSURANCE FUNDS FOR FARMS

RAPID INCREASE IN SOUTH

Agricultural Enterprises of War Take $400,000,000 More in Mortgages and Cities Less.

The extent to which the life insurance companies of the United States have helped to increase the country's food production by increasing their loans on farm mortgages is set forth in a report issued yesterday by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, through the office of the association's Secretary and Manager, George T. Wight, at 165 Broadway. The association represents practically all the life insurance companies in the United States, and the report shows that, in the years 1915 and 1916, the companies increased their loans on farm mortgages nearly $200,000,000, while their loans on city real estate decreased $20,000,000. But more than all this, in the first nine months of 1917, new farm loans, to the amount of $200,000,000 were negotiated.

The association has compiled no figures to show the decrease in the amount of loans on New York City real estate or on the real estate of the Metropolitan district, but it is well known that these loans have materially decreased since the world war began, and particularly since the United States entered the war, not so much because American life insurance companies have increased their loans on farm mortgages, but because of the inability of real estate investors to get material and labor with which to construct new buildings.

The report states that 95 per cent. of the money loaned on farm mortgages has gone into nineteen States of the South and West, which States are supplying three-quarters of the bulk of the country's staple food products. And this has been done by companies owning more than 97½ per cent. of all outstanding mortgages. Of the farmers of the country who borrowed from life insurance companies, those of Iowa were the heaviest. At the end of 1916 Iowa farms had been mortgaged to life insurance companies to the amount of $195,782,000. Missouri came next with an account of $73,528,633 to settle.

"The great agricultural sections of the country," the report says, "were those which attracted most of the new farm mortgage money of the life insurance companies during these two years, the Northwest leading with $86,000,000, an increase of 30 per cent.; the Southwest shows an increase of $46,000,000, or nearly 25 per cent.; the Central Northern, $19,000,000, or 16.8 per cent.; the Gulf and Mississippi Valley, $11,000,000, or 54 per cent., which is the highest rate of increase in any section of the country. The South Atlantic shows an increase of $9,800,000, or 48 per cent. It thus appears that while the largest amounts of money have gone into the Northwest and Southwest, the rate of increase has been greatest south of the Potomac and Ohio Rivers, and east of the Mississippi.

"It therefore appears," continues the report, "that the life insurance companies have loaned about 95 per cent. of their farm mortgage money in the States that contribute approximately three-quarters of the bulk of the country's staple food products, a production that is being shared with the countries of our Allies more than ever before."

New High Records for Foreign Bonds

The 6 per cent. bonds of the four French cities and the 5½ per cent. French Government and British Government notes made new high records for the year yesterday. The bonds of the Cities of Bordeaux, Lyons, and Marseilles sold up to 96½, and the City of Paris to 94. The French Government 5½s, due April 1, 1919 advanced to 100¼ while the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5½ per cent. notes, due 1919, moved up to 99⅛.

MAYOR PLANS FLORAL TRIBUTE TO HEROES

City Will Raise Mounds in All Its Parks as Memorial to Sons Lost in War.

Mayor Hylan issued a proclamation yesterday, supplementing his proclamation recently in which he asked that Sept. 1 be observed throughout the city as Heroes' Day. In his proclamation yesterday the Mayor said there would be Heroes' Flower Mound in every borough, and asked the citizens to place a flower on the mounds in honor of the American boys who have died in France. This is the proclamation:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor.

PROCLAMATION.

To the People of the City of New York:

No citizen of New York is unmindful of the supreme sacrifices that have been made by the sons of this city who today lay in their graves in France. There is no man, woman, or child in our city who would not shed tears and place flowers on those graves if it could be done.

By previous proclamation I have heretofore set this coming Sunday, Sept. 1, as Heroes' Day, and many plans have already been announced by the committee to make our sense of appreciation to these heroes and their mothers clear to all the world.

In addition to all other plans for the day I hereby proclaim that there will be a Heroes' Flower Mound in each borough of the city in one of the parks to be designated. Each Borough President is hereby called upon to see thatthis plan is carried out in conjunction with the committee.

We cannot go through France to decorate the graves of the boys we love, but we can have a sentimental representation of those graves in Central Park, Crotona Park, and a park in each of the boroughs.

The citizens of New York, rich and poor alike, should watch for the announcement of the exact place where each borough is to have its Heroes' Flower Mound. Sometime Sunday, between sunrise and sunset, I hope every one in New York will want to show the well deserved affection for our boys that will cause them all to go to these flower mounds and drop at least one little flower there to help build up a mountal nof appreciation for our boys.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of New York to be affixed.

Done in the City of New York, this 27th day of August, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred eighteen.

By the Mayor: JOHN F. HYLAN.
Grover A. Whalen,
Secretary to the Mayor.

The committee appointed by the Mayor to arrange plans for Heroes' Day will co-operate with the Borough Presidents regarding the selection of parks for the Heroes' Flower Mounds.

RED CROSS CHILDREN SLAIN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Details of the recent shelling of an American Red Cross bath house for Belgian soldiers near the Belgian front, in which twenty-three Belgian employes were killed and sixty others injured, were received today at American Red Cross headquarters.

The three large buildings, including a laundry and fumigating plant, gave employment to about 200 persons.

A shell hit the roof of the laundry of the bath about 11 o'clock in the morning. Fragments penetrated all three structures and destroyed them. Men, women, and children were hurled in every direction and for long distances. Parts of bodies were found in the street many feet from the structure.

The employes were refugees driven from Belgian towns by the German advance. A little hunchback girl, who was supporting her widowed mother, lost both legs. At the hospital she said to her mother, "It doesn't matter so much. I can still sit and sew. I will be a dressmaker and we will get along."

Mayor at Coney Parade.

Mayor Hylan reviewed the "City Night" parade at the Coney Island Week celebration of the Knights of Columbus last night. The parade was headed by the Fire Department Band, followed by several gaily decorated floats and about 9,000 marchers. The Mayor was accompanied by Brooklyn Borough President Riegelmann and County Clerk William E. Kelley.

British Workman Now a General.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Godfrey Jones of Wales is the first British workingman to attain the rank of General. He enlisted in the ranks and during the war has been steadily promoted until he was named Colonel a short time ago. He now has been nominated a Brigadier General.

By Special Act

The Brooklyn Trust Company was chartered in April, 1866, by Special Act of the Legislature. The charter grants certain powers, including authority:

To accept deposits of money subject to check.

To act as trustee under every description of trust, for individuals, estates, or corporations.

To act as executor under wills.

To act as agent for the management and custody of property.

The Company's clients benefit by its unusually extensive experience in the field of trust services, in which, acting under a special law, it was a pioneer.

Not until 1887 were enacted the banking laws from which are derived the powers of trust companies in general.

Inquiries are invited.

COST OF LIVING UP 50% IN FOUR YEARS

Official Investigation Shows Food Prices Increased 62% and Clothing 77%.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—An increase of 50 to 55 per cent. in the cost of living for the family of the average wage-earner in the United States during the period from the outbreak of the war in July, 1914, up to the middle of June, 1918, is indicated in a report on "Wartime Changes in the Cost of Living" issued today by the National Industrial Conference Board. The increases for the different items were:

Food	62%
Rent	15%
Clothing	77%
Fuel and light	45%
Sundries	50%
Average increase, (depending on apportionment of these respective items in the family budget)	50% to 55%

In combining the percentages of increase for the respective items, in order to determine the average increase for the budget as a whole, food was taken as constituting 43 per cent. of the total family expenditure, rent 18 per cent., clothing 13 per cent., fuel and light 6 per cent., and sundries 20 per cent. Applying the board's percentages of increase for the respective items to this distribution of the budget, the average increase is 52 per cent. The distribution of budget items just given is an average based on cost of living studies made by several United States Government bureaus and other agencies, covering in all 12,000 families.

The report cites records of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, which show an average increase in retail prices of fifteen leading articles of food between mid-Summer of 1914 and June, 1918, of about 62 per cent.

All articles of food show a considerable increase in price since 1914. Exceptional advances were recorded in prices of flour, lard and corn meal.

In Philadelphia, the increase in the cost of food between 1914 and the end of 1917 was 54.41 per cent; 55.28 per cent. in New York; in Jacksonville, Fla., 57.32 per cent.; and in New Orleans 50.83 per cent.

A frequent feature of the replies received during the inquiry was that further increases in rent during the coming Fall were to be expected.

Information secured from retail stores in cities well distributed throughout the country indicates increases in prices of the most common articles of wearing apparel ranging from 50.5 per cent. for women's dollar blouses up to 161 per cent. for men's overalls.

The report places the average rise in the total clothing budget, since 1914, at 77 per cent. This increase compares with an increase of 51.33 per cent. between 1914 and 1917 for families in the shipbuilding district of Philadelphia and an increase of 54.21 per cent. among similar families in the shipbuilding district of New York.

Prices secured from coal dealers in different localities frequently showed advances of 20 per cent. to 40 per cent. up to June, 1918, for ton lots of anthracite, and more marked increases in the cost of bituminous coal, which is extensively used for domestic purposes in some sections of the country.

P. S. BOARD DEFENDS THE NEW SUBWAYS

CALLS DELAY INEVITABLE

Through Trains Between Times Square and Brooklyn Via Fourth Avenue Suggested as Relief.

Finding many points of virtue in the new subway system, including the saving of "millions of dollars in fares" to the public through the operation of portions of the dual system, Commissioners Travis H. Whitney and Charles Bulkley Hubbell presented a report to the commission yesterday dealing with the problems and difficulties of the Interborough operation. The report states that the commission had "endeavored to the best of its ability to build and get into operation the lines called for by the dual contracts," but that satisfactory results were forestalled owing to the incompleteness of certain parts of the system, such as the Clark Street tunnel and the shuttle arrangements at Grand Central Terminal and Times Square.

For the immediate relief of Brooklyn traffic and traffic originating in the west side of Central Park, the Commissioners make the following recommendations:

Suggestion for Brooklyn Trains.

"Until the Clark Street tunnel is in operation, and in order to reduce to a minimum the transferring at the diagonal station, it is recommended that the Interborough company be directed to institute, either with local or express trains, a service from Times Square, over the track connections which have been provided, down Fourth Avenue to Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. If such service is local it should be maintained to Brooklyn only until the company, by increasing the number of its employes, is able to bring the number of east side expresses to thirty trains per hour. At that time the service from Times Square should be terminated at the City Hall loop."

The Commissioners, in connection with the Times Square service, warn against the continued "reluctance of the two companies to designate properly their respective ticket booths and entrances apparently from some desire for competition in securing Times Square passengers destined for points in lower Manhattan or Brooklyn." The present signs are found to be ambiguous and confusing, and both companies are urged to provide more definite indications of the name of the line operating from any part of the station.

The Commissioners do not look for a completion of the construction work on the Clark Street tunnel until Oct. 1, but in view of the fact that the track is already partly in place in the tunnel the Commissioners declare it should be possible to begin operation of the tunnel in advance of heavy Winter travel.

ACQUITS THE INTERBOROUGH

Grand Jury Holds City Responsible for Jerome Avenue Service.

The Bronx County Grand Jury yesterday handed a presentment to Justice Giegerich in the Supreme Court absolving the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of all blame for the poor service on the Jerome Avenue subway, and laying responsibility upon the city for failure to carry out its contract. The investigation was undertaken several weeks ago after many complaints had been made.

MORE WHEAT FLOUR ALLOWED IN BREAD

Federal Food Board, in New Regulations, Now Calls for Only 20% of Substitutes.

The Federal Food Board announced a new set of wheat regulations yesterday. The fifty-fifty substitute rule now gives way to a less drastic regulation, calling for only 20 per cent. of substitutes with 80 per cent. of wheat flour, and allowing the maintenance of a sixty-day supply of flour instead of a thirty-day supply. Wheatless days and wheatless meals are discontinued.

The new regulations go into effect on Sept. 1. They also provide for the marketing of a ready mixed flour to be known as "victory mixed flour." The announcement gives these regulations:

"First, for the preparation and marketing by the manufacturing and distributing trades of the country of a mixed flour complying with the international policy which will be available for purchase by the household; second, in regulations covering the case where straight wheat flour is sold by retailers, that at the same time 20 per cent. of other cereal flours must be sold coincidentally; third, requiring that all bakers' bread shall contain 20 per cent. of other cereals, and the Food Administration relies upon the householders of the country to mix at least 20 per cent. of the substitute cereals into the wheat flour at home for all uses. Cornmeal for the use of cornbread should be purchased separately from combination sales.

"Mixed wheat and barley flour shall be in the proportion of four pounds of wheat flour to one pound of barley flour.

"Mixed wheat and corn flour shall contain the proportion of four pounds of wheat flour to one pound of corn flour.

"Mixed wheat, barley, and corn flour shall contain the proportions of eight pounds of wheat flour to one pound barley and one pound corn flour.

"Mixed wheat and rye flour shall contain the proportion of three pounds of wheat flour and not less than two pounds of rye flour.

"Whole wheat, entire wheat, or Graham flour or meal shall contain at least 95 per cent. of the wheat berry.

"All the above 'victory flours' may be sold without substitutes, but at no greater price from the miller, wholesaler, or retailer than in the case of standard wheat flour.

"There are some localities where other substitutes are available and which retailers may wish to carry. In order to meet this situation the following flours may be sold in such combination in lieu of the above flours if the consumer so demands:

"At the ratio of one pound to each four pounds of wheat flour—that is, rice flour, oat flour, kaffir flour, milo flour, sweet potato flour, and buckwheat flour. Pure rye flour or meal may be sold as a substitute, but must be sold in proportion of at least two pounds of rye with three pounds of wheat flour.

For Aid of British Soldiers.

To commemorate the taking of Jerusalem by the British, the American Committee of the Kitchener and Allenby foundation is raising a fund to reach London by Dec. 11, the first anniversary of the entry into the Holy City. The object is to make provision for hopelessly disabled officers and men of the British Army and Navy whose pensions will be insufficient for their maintenance. F. Cunliffe-Owen is Chairman of the American committee.

CONGRESSMEN BARRED FROM BRITISH FRONT

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press.)—The British authorities, it has been learned, recently refused their permission for Representative Ernest Lundeen of Minnesota and Representative Charles H. Dillon of South Dakota to visit the British battlefront. The two Congressmen arrived in France late in July on board a British vessel, and later visited the American front. It is believed they now are touring Italy.

The request that the Congressmen be permitted to pay a visit to the British lines is said to have been made in the usual manner by the American Army authorities. When the declination of the British was received an investigation was begun. This, is is asserted, resulted in the explanation that both men had talked freely aboard ship in such a manner about certain subjects affecting the war that both British and American military and civilian passengers brought the subject of their conversations to the attention of the officer commanding the troops aboard the vessel and also the ship's Captain.

The exact tenor of the statements the Congressmen are alleged to have made is not known, but the military authorities are pursuing their investigation of the incident.

AGREE ON TAX BILL.

Kitchin So Indicates After a Conference with McAdoo.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Hearings on the War Revenue bill to begin next Tuesday and continue for not more than ten days were arranged today by the Senate Finance Committtee. All industries will be asked to appoint representative spokesmen to avoid duplication of evidence presented, but any one desiring to be heard will be invited to attend.

Chairman Simmons said today that he had been advised by Chairman Kitchin of the House committee that the bill would be reported to the House next Friday and that the House debate would begin next Tuesday.

After a four-hour conference at the Treasury Department today by Mr. Kitchin, Secretary McAdoo, Assistant Secretary Leffingwell, and Dr. T. S. Adams, Chairman of the Treasury Excess Profits Tax Advisory Board, Mr. Kitchin intimated that an agreement in all probability would be reached on a flat normal tax of 12 per cent. on both earned and unearned incomes, with corresponding changes in the higher brackets of the surtaxes.

NAVAL RESERVE NO MORE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27. — Secretary Daniels issued an order today wiping out the distinction which has existed between regulars and reservists in the navy. The order follows:

"Applicable alike to regulars and reservists, the uniform of any given rank or rating in the navy shall hereafter be identical in every respect throughout, except for the necessary distinguishing corps devices; and every officer in the navy shall be designated and addressed by the title of his rank without any discrimination whatever."

MURPHY IS UNFIT, OSBORN DECLARES

Candidate Says Tammany's Leader Is Not Qualified to Control the State.

'PEOPLE DISLIKE MACHINES'

Governor, He Adds, Cannot Sidetrack the War Because It Is Uppermost in the Public Mind.

William Church Osborn yesterday declared that Charles F. Murphy was in complete control of the Democratic State organization and was absolutely unfit to be leader of the Democratic Party in the greatest State of the Union owing to his complete ignorance regarding party policies and the questions which at present are agitating the public mind. Mr. Osborn gave his interview at his campaign headquarters in the Hotel Manhattan.

"Murphy has got to think that he owns the car instead of merely being the chauffeur," Mr. Osborn added. "I think the time has come for the people to let him know where they want him to drive it."

He also said that Mr. Murphy and Governor Whitman were very much alike in their ignorance on questions of public interest.

"Governor Whitman is a very different man from Mr. Murphy," said Mr. Osborn. "But they have got one thing in common. They have both been looking at the machine so closely that they have become near-sighted."

Mr. Osborn declared that Governor Whitman's attempt to sidetrack the war as an issue would prove futile, because the war was uppermost in the public mind.

"In a commonplace way Governor Whitman's war record is good enough, but the State during his administration has not begun to do its full share in support of the war," Mr. Osborn said.

Though Mr. Osborn is making his fight for the Gubernatorial nomination in the Democratic primaries against President Alfred E. Smith of the Aldermen, he refrained from making any direct attack on his opponent, and centred his fire on Tammany Leader Murphy.

"One thing has been demonstrated in the course of this campaign," said Mr. Osborn. "The people do not care for the machine politics of either Governor Whitman or Mr. Murphy. They want the State to produce definite results for the war, and that is all they care about.

"I have pointed out a way in which the State can help materially—by producing more and cheaper food and better transportation facilities by using the Erie Canal to bring food and fuel to market. I have also shown the necessity for the State to provide protection for women entering our industries. I do not think Mr. Murphy has any ideas about or any views on these matters."

CAPTAINS STAND BY LEWIS.

Three Election District Heads Refuse to Work for Whitman.

After Attorney General Merton E. Lewis had made an address before the Republican organization of the Eleventh Assembly District on Monday night a demand by Charles H. Griffiths, Republican leader in the Eleventh, that his election district captains go out and hustle for Governor Whitman or resign, led to a revolt on the part of some. Mr. Lewis had said that he regarded indorsements by Republican organizations of candidates in the primaries as contrary to the spirit and possibly the letter of the Direct Primary law. The Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee, of which Samuel S. Koenig, who holds office under the Whitman Administration, is Chairman, has indorsed the Governor for a third term nomination.

After Mr. Lewis had left the clubhouse at 550 West 113th Street Mr. Griffiths made his demand. George Dobbin, Harry N. Goldberg, and Samuel Leavitt, election district captains, in succession bitterly attacked Mr. Griffiths, declaring that they agreed with the contention of Attorney General Lewis and did not propose to work for Governor Whitman. Yesterday they called on Mr. Lewis at his headquarters in the Murray Hill Hotel and pledged their support.

WOODS QUITS AS CHAIRMAN.

Beaten on War Record, Now Out of Republican Congressional Committee

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Representative Frank P. Woods of Iowa, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, defeated for renomination because of his war record, tonight resigned as Chairman. A special committee appointed last week was about to call upon him to retire.

There will be a meeting of the committee next week to select a new Chairman. Among those mentioned for the place are Representatives Simeon D. Fess of Ohio and Samuel E. Winslow of Massachusetts.

ASSAILS PRESIDENT IN KEYNOTE SPEECH

Congressman Rodenberg Says That Wilson Plays Politics in Everything He Does.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—In what was declared by his colleagues to be the keynote speech of the Republican Congressional campaign, Representative William A. Rodenberg of Illinois today in the House severely arraigned President Wilson for alleged political activities and attempts to influence the selection of particular candidates.

He spoke nearly an hour, and the trend of his remarks prompted Representative Arthur G. Dewalt, a Democrat of Pennsylvania, to reply, charging that such an attack upon the President came with "ill grace from a man who had voted against war, supported the McLemore resolution, and favored the embargo on the shipment of munitions."

At the outset Mr. Rodenberg said he and all Republicans had loyally supported the President since the declaration of war, and that this was "exactly as it should be, for after all this is the only true test of national patriotism. The loyalty of no man is to be determined by his eagerness to plunge his country into war, but rather by the manner and spirit in which he supports the Government when his country is at war.

The Roman Catholic Church Rarely Makes a Mistake

In the purchase of Real Estate

It invariably buys church sites in advance of population. Observe the locations selected for their churches all over America and see how population surrounds them. You cannot possibly go wrong if you buy lots near where the Catholic Church, in its foresight, selects a site for a new church. The Catholic Church has contracted to purchase one-fourth of a block at Manhattan Beach for a church, rectory and school. Attend the Absolute Auction Sale next Saturday, August 31, at 2:30 P. M., on the premises, rain or shine, in a large tent. Bookmap may be obtained from Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, 31 Nassau St., New York. Telephone Cortlandt 744.

AMERICANS DIE IN FIGHT ON BORDER

OTHER SIDE LOSES HEAVILY

Over 300 Killed or Wounded—Attempt to Smuggle Man Across Border the Cause.

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 27.—One American officer fell fighting in the streets of Nogales late today, one civilian was killed, another officer seriously wounded, and between ten and twenty American soldiers killed during the skirmish which took place along International Avenue between American troops and Mexicans in Nogales, Sonora.

Approximately fifteen Americans were wounded, including Lieut. Col. Frederick H. Herman, who was shot through the right leg while commanding the American troops. He continued in command while on crutches.

The dead include Captain J. D. Hungerford, who was killed in action. The civilian was Gaston Reddock, who was killed during the first hour of the fighting. Lieutenant Luke W. Loftus was seriously wounded.

While the casualties on the Mexican side of the border were not known tonight, it was estimated that 100 had been killed and at least twice that number, including a number of civilians, wounded. It was reported tonight that the Mayor of Nogales, Sonora, was killed, but this was not confirmed.

The fighting followed the alleged efforts of a Mexican customs official to smuggle a fellow countryman across the boundary into the United States. An American sentry attempted to stop him. Two Mexicans fired at the sentry across the street, striking him in the right arm. The fire was returned by American patrols and, after Mexicans had rushed from nearby buildings and started shooting across the line from behind buildings and walls, the firing became general.

Reinforcements from an infantry regiment, in command of Lieut. Col. Herman, and a negro cavalry regiment were rushed to the border and took up combat positions. It was estimated that more than 300 American soldiers and at least fifty civilians participated in the shooting. It was reported tonight that a detachment of cavalry crossed the border in pursuit of the Mexicans, but this was not confirmed. The fighting which started at 4:05 P. M., continued without abatement until 5:30, when it died down except for an occasional sniping shot along the long International street.

At 5:30 a white flag was displayed by the Mexicans. A parley followed, but the sniping continued until after 9 o'clock Bullets fell in Nogales and civilians were ordered to remain indoors. Adobe houses, because their walls cannot be pierced by high power bullets, were especially popular, and many families spent the night in these buildings with friends.

International Avenue, where the fighting started, zigzags its way along the international boundary line between Mexico and the United States and forms the main business street in towns of the two republics.

American sentries patrol the boundary night and day, while Mexican sentries patrol the opposite side of the wide business street. Customs guards and patrol squads have their stations at the American and Mexican Custom Houses, which face each other across the street.

Nogalez, Ariz., is a progressive Arizona border town with modern houses, two and three story business buildings on International Avenue. Nogalez, Sonora, the Mexican town, is a typical Mexican border town with square adobe houses. It has been the scene of a number of border battles.

FILM MOBS NONESSENTIAL.

Los Angeles Police Seize "Extras" Under Work-or-Fight Edict.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—Few, if any, motion-picture plays containing mob or crowd scenes will be produced in Los Angeles studios, according to producers, if a policy recently adopted by the police department of Los Angeles is carried out.

The Police Department recently announced its decision that appearing in Roman mobs, modern riots, or wheat-pit panics was not work essential to the winning of the war, and that participation in a sham battle for the films was not fighting in the sense intended by Provost Marshal General Crowder in his "work or fight" order. The police order was directed at what the profession termed "extras," who were hired by the day, first by one company and then by another, to provide "atmosphere." Most of the men thus employed were of the age and class included in the police order.

When the first warning was not generally observed it was repeated, and by way of emphasis about a hundred men waiting for employment at several studios within the city were arrested. Some of these were taken before their draft boards, others allowed to look for more useful employment, while a number were held on vagrancy charges.

Total—40.

Senator Jones of Washington announced that he would insist upon the Senate conferees standing by the Senate amendment allowing officers to purchase uniforms and equipment at cost from Quartermaster's stores. Senators Chamberlain, Warren, and Hitchcock were appointed as conferees on the bill.

Persistent efforts to defeat lowering the age limit below 21 years all failed. Senators Gore of Oklahoma and Kirby of Arkansas led the attack to keep youths from the draft, and other Senators, including Sterling of South Dakota, Townsend of Michigan, Vardaman of Mississippi, and Poindexter of Washington, aided in the movement. When the bill emerged, through parliamentary procedure, from the Committee of the Whole into the open Senate, a vote on Senator Poindexter's motion to make the lowest draft age 19 was defeated, 52 to 21. The vote follows:

For the motion:

Republicans—Borah, Cummins, Curtis, France, Jones, (Wash.,) Kenyon, McNary, Norris, Poindexter, Smith, (Mich.,) Sutherland, Townsend—12.

Total—21.

Against the motion:

Total—52.

There were actually two separate votes on the Poindexter motion, for one was offered first while the Senate sat in committee. This motion was defeated by 58 to 14. Senators Curtis of Kansas, Gore, Kirby, Norris and Vardaman voted against the motion on the first ballot, but shifted to "aye" on the second ballot.

Senator Kirby's motion to make the low draft limit 20 years was beaten 60 to 12. A motion by Senator Vardaman to make the lowest age 20 years was beaten.

Two motions by Senator Gore, one to defer sending men below 19 overseas, the other to defer sending men below 21, were beaten. So was his motion to make the age limits effective Oct. 1. A motion by Senator Cummings to separate the registrants into three age groups was beaten. The same fate was shared by a motion by Senator Sterling to prevent men under 19 from being used for other than military service. Several other motions went by the board.

An amendment by Senator Penrose was adopted by a viva voce vote to carry out recent recommendations made by Provost Marshal General Crowder. This amendment provides that a local draft board shall determine from a registrant's questionnaire whether he is exempt, without requiring him to answer other questions. Thus the responsibility is thrown upon the draft board.

Senator Overman said he was so much opposed to sending eighteen-year-old boys to war that he had an amendment ready, but, after consulting Secretary Baker, had decided to withhold it.

"He assured me," said Senator Overman, "that he did not intend to call the boys of 18 until an emergency should arise. I asked him if I could make that statement on the floor of the Senate. He said, 'Yes.' Therefore, relying upon his statement, I am going to vote for this bill."

To Enlist Men of 55.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—In order that younger men may be released for more active positions, the enlistment of men between the ages of 45 and 55 years has been approved by the War Department for the Ordnance Department, Quartermaster, and Medical Corps and for certain branches of the Signal Corps. Instructions to this effect were sent today to army recruiting units throughout the country.

Minor disabilities which do not interfere with the performance of the military duties of applicants will be waived, it was sand.

A release signed by present employers will be required with each application from a recruit over 45 years, so that the industrial machinery of the country may not suffer.

EXPECT TO REGISTER 1,000,000 FOR DRAFT

The number of men in New York City who are expected to register under the provisions of the new selective draft law, between the ages of 18 and 45, is estimated at between 900,000 and 1,000,000. The local draft officials are now at work preparing to handle this huge army of registrants, who must be registered in one day, which day President Wilson is expected to designate some time this week. It is believed among the draft officials that registration day will be some day next week.

It was pointed out yesterday that the registration of last Saturday and Monday produced about 1,000 more twenty-one-year-old registrants than had been expected. The number expected to register was about 7,000. Complete official returns filed in the office of Director Conboy yesterday showed that the new registrants numbered 8,154. District 29, in Brooklyn, proved to be the banner district of the city with seventy-five registrants.

What if you are a Millionaire

I DON'T care how much money you've got, you can't afford to spend more than is necessary to get what you need. Secretary of the Treasury, McAdoo, expressed my sentiments when he said the other day in New York:

"I have no patience with the spendthrift today because the Nation is in need of every dollar it can get. The man who hangs on to his dollar regardless of what the other man may say, is the man who is helping to win the war—and is doing almost as much for his country as the man in uniform."

If you are willing to deprive yourself of the luxury of paying for a label when buying a hat, I can show you how to save a dollar.

I have new colors in Brown, soft shades in Green, new tones in Gray. I have Felt Hats and Derbies. All the shapes and styles that the other fellow has—and then some. They're good enough for anybody—and they're all one price—$2.85

DO YOU CHAFE?

Chafing may not be dangerous, but it's all-fired distressing. Takes the fun out of work and makes play a painful effort.

Here's the cure:

Kora-Konia stays where it's put because it is adhesive and moisture resisting. Perspiration doesn't wash it away.

Try Kora-Konia on baby for diaper and teething rash and have a happy baby. Great for sunburn.

LOVERS OF LOUISIANA

By George W. Cable

This delightful romance opens at Atlantic City. There two old New Orleans families, between which a certain inherited hostility existed, are thrown together for a time, with the result that the young lawyer who is destined to be the head of one falls in love with the beautiful Creole daughter of the other.

When the scene shifts to New Orleans the plot develops rapidly, involving many dramatic incidents, among them an attempt at assassination caused by the conflict between the new and old ideas. $1.50 net.
